MY FRIEND JACK — Gerald Peyton, manager of Georgetown's Piggly Wiggly Store, displays his Halloween jack-o'-lantern creation, complete with ears. A past master at pumpkin paring, Peyton also rigs a "talking pumpkin" in the window of his home on Halloween nights with a tape recorder. If you or your youngsters go a-haunting Sunday night, remember to check treats received and watch the traffic so you'll have many another happy Halloween.

Sheriff nets 250 pounds of weed after mysterious drop

The Williamson County Sheriff's Office on Friday afternoon reported recovery of 250 pounds of marijuana from the western part of the county, after an apparent air-drop of 500 pounds of the drug there sometime early last week.

ANOTHER 100 POUNDS of the substance was discovered in eastern Burnet County. Total estimated wholesale value of the find was placed at $54,000 - $60,000 ($90-$100 per pound). Total retail, or "street", value was estimated at $96,000 ($10 per ounce).

The substance was found in twelve 50-pound bales strung along a 3½-4 mile line running west-northwest to south-southeast between Burnet and Georgetown.

Deputies theorized the bales were dropped from a low-flying airplane sometime Monday night, probably because the occupants of the plane wanted to lighten its load or because they feared discovery of the cargo. They said one bale narrowly missed hitting a house in the area.

THE DEPUTIES also theorized the plane was flying inbound from some point in Mexico because the substance was wrapped in what they described as Mexican paper."

Deputy Jim Boutwell said the Sheriff's Office began recovery operations Wednesday morning after Liberty Hill Constable Lee Hays reported discovery of the bales. Boutwell said the original discovery was made by a western Williamson County rancher, who then reported it to Hays.

According to the Sheriff's Office, the substance was found as tightly-compressed bricks wrapped in paper and then bound with twine into 50-pound bales covered with a plastic-type material and burlap.

Boutwell said he, Sheriff August H. Bosshard, and deputy Leon Kelley recovered four bales of the load Wednesday, including one load Wednesday morning and another Wednesday night.

THE REST of the line of bales, he added, was discovered from the air Thursday morning, hidden in an area of the western county not readily accessible by vehicle.

Bosshard and his deputies reported recovery of another bale Friday morning. They hoped to retrieve the rest of the load before dark Friday.

The recovery effort was coordinated with similar efforts by the Burnet County Sheriff's Office and the Narcotics Division of the Texas Department of Public Safety (DPS).

The Sheriff's Office said the recovered substance would be turned over to DPS labs.

FROM OUT OF THE BLUE — Williamson County Sheriff August H. Bosshard holds a handful of the 250 pounds of suspected marijuana recovered from western Williamson County during the latter part of the week. The substance was found in twelve 50-pound bales apparently air-dropped along a line running between Burnet and Georgetown. Bosshard and two deputies recovered four bales last Wednesday morning and one Friday morning. The rest was located in an area inaccessible by vehicle, so the Sheriff's Department hoped to airlift it out with a helicopter before nightfall Friday. The Sheriff's Office said one of the bales narrowly missed hitting a house when it was dropped.

Tuesday, November 2, is election day. In order to help all Georgetown residents get to the voting places, some local citizens are offering free rides. If you need a ride to the polls, call Betty Swift at 863-5151, or Art Johnston at 863-3552.

the passing glance

No question at all about any of the races except the big one. Right now it seems that the scales are tipped toward Jimmy Carter. This could change by Tuesday.

A LARGE NUMBER of SUNDAY SUNS go into Congressman W. R. Poage's district, which includes Round Rock and the east half of Williamson County. "Mr. Bob" is one of the greatest, a public servant of the highest order, deserving of our support for as long as he wants to serve.

For those who didn't receive the Thursday SUN, we suggested — yea, urged — everyone to scratch the name of Don Yarbrough, discredited Democratic nominee for State Supreme Court, and write in the name Sam Houston, who is a fine man serving as District Judge in Denton. We endorsed all the other Democratic candidates except Jimmy Carter. We listed the SUN as still undecided on that top contest. With two days to go, I am leaning toward the peanut farmer.

Frankly, I haven't run across many people around here who aren't openly for President Ford. My farm friends tell me that they, also, feel he has helped them, so the outcome of the vote in this county, which is historically Democratic, could be in doubt right through the counting.

GEORGETOWN BUSINESS people are now searching for a Chamber of Commerce manager to succeed Gene Martinka, who resigned several weeks ago. A number of applicants have been interviewed but no decisions have been forthcoming. A viable Chamber of Commerce is most important to the business community and we all hope this vacancy can be quickly and effectively filled. An enterprising manager would be especially useful during the Christmas season, which is right upon us.

County swine flu clinics scheduled November 6, 7

Limited supply available but flu season is now

With only 5,600 doses of the monovalent swine flu vaccine on hand and promise of another 5,000 doses soon — and the flu season arriving with cold rain this week — Williamson County Health Director Dr. Donald Myers has given the go-ahead sign for organization of flu clinics in the county.

Shots both for persons 18 to 64 and for those 65 and over or who have chronic illnesses will be administered in Georgetown at the courthouse from 9 a.m. until 5 p.m. Saturday, November 6, and between noon and 4 p.m. Sunday, November 7. The south entranceway with the ramp will be used for the elderly.

Although Myers had hoped to receive enough vaccine for the county's approximately 40,000 residents before beginning any clinics, he had expected the vaccine early in October.

Because only small deliveries have been made on separate occasions, with no assurance of when how much more vaccine will arrive, Myers initiated the program without enough serum to inoculate everyone in the county.

Whether or not more clinics will be scheduled later depends upon the availability of the vaccine.

THE INJECTIONS will be made on a first-come, first-serve basis until the vaccine runs out. Although clinics had initially been scheduled for two successive weekends, that plan changed with the decision to start inoculations with the small amount of vaccine on hand.

Currently, the clinics are scheduled to be held only on November 6 and 7.

Five nurses from the health unit will be working during the weekend so that one will be available at each clinic. In addition to the Georgetown clinics, swine flu shots will be given at central locations in Leander, Round Rock and Taylor.

A fifth clinic will be held all day Saturday in Granger and Sunday afternoon in Jarrell.

Volunteers are also being accepted to help with the paperwork required.

Each person taking the shot must read and sign a form stating that they have had the opportunity to ask questions about the shots and that they understand the benefits and risks of taking the inoculation.

"If the people would read this beforehand it would save time in registering," Donna Barksdale of Georgetown, volunteer coordinator for the clinics, noted. The registration form is reproduced on page 4 of this issue of the Sunday SUN.

Both Myers and Diane Sansom, who is cordinating the clinic workers, pointed out that it is the paperwork which is the most time-consuming segment of the clinic.

Cards detailing the lot number of each batch of serum used must also be filled out for each person to keep as a record of the immunization.

Also health director of Bell County, Myers pointed out that the shot clinics were held in small communities in that county last weekend, with a poor turnout.

He tagged the cold, wet weather and little advance notice that the clinics would be held as two reasons for the poor showing.

CALLING THE RESPONSE "pretty disappointing," Myers said, "We were prepared for about 10,000 people and we got 1,273 — about 10 percent of what we expected. We are going to go this weekend in Temple, Belton and Killeen, and we hope this weekend's turnout will be better."

The health administrator also pointed out that, to judge by the number of calls the health center in Georgetown has received from persons anxious to receive the inoculation, Williamson County residents seem more concerned about getting the shots.

While Williamson has only about one-fourth the amount of vaccine which would be required if every citizen requested the free immunization, Myers agreed that, if demand remains

CARTERESQUE, Georgetown Mayor John Doerfler receives one of the first swine flu shots administered in Georgetown. County health officials have scheduled five immunization clinics for the general public next weekend, November 6 and 7, in six Williamson County towns despite the fact that the full shipment of vaccine has not yet been received. All shots will be given on a first-come, first-serve basis between 9 a.m. and 5 p.m. Saturday, November 6, and between noon and 4 p.m. Sunday, November 7, until supplies are exhausted. Dr. Donald Myers, director of the health unit located in Georgetown, explained that the inoculations would begin before all vaccine has been delivered because of the rapid approach of the flu season.

Voter interest in Tuesday's presidential election is increasing as the final hours produce frenzied efforts from both camps, the Harris poll said Thursday. Now a larger than expected turnout of votes is expected and, surprisingly, the expert observers say this will help Ford. Dick Cervenka, Williamson County County Clerk, appears to be expecting a sizeable vote. Four years ago there were about 400 absentee votes cast prior to the election; this year the total had risen to 584 by Thursday morning.

Chicago area housewives are "getting organized."

They don't call their organization a "union"; they call it "The Chicago Wages for Housework Committee." They are passing out leaflets on weekends around shopping centers explaining their purpose and recruiting members.

ALREADY SIMILAR GROUPS of housewives are "getting organized" in Brooklyn and in Los Angeles.

Indeed, anything less must certainly be discriminatory.

Yet if either political party were to campaign for "wages for everyone who works," such a promise most certainly would have to include "working housewives."

And with government paying such generous wages and retirement benefits to men and women working in government jobs. . .

And with government making such generous payments and benefits available to people who do not work at all. . .

It is she who chairs the Chicago area "Wages for Housework Committee."

This housewife, married and mother of two, says, "As is, when a company hires my husband it gets two workers for the price of one.

"No," she says, "this is not just a symbolic gesture. We want to be paid for our work as everybody else is paid for working."

How much?

"We've not yet put a price tag on our labors," she says.

The Chicago organization is presently financing its activities by selling dish towels on which is stamped their slogan: "Wages for housework."

"ALL THESE YEARS," says Mrs. Mack, "government and businesses have benefited from the work we do. Now it's time we start getting paid for it."

How to pay them and how much? That, the ladies insist, can be worked out later.

Admittedly, however, the problems of execution could cause their plan to abort.

Dr. Doris McLaughlin of the Labor Institute at Wayne State in Michigan deduces that if working women have to depend on domestic employees to tend the homefront, a working man without a housewife would certainly have to pay somebody to tend her chores.

How come she is expected to work with no compensation beyond food, shelter and clothing?

A RECENT STUDY analyzing the hours and duties of housewives — cooking, mending, cleaning, chauffeuring, baby sitting, nursing, and so forth — concluded that the average housewife's labors in today's marketplace should earn about $30,000 a year.

I understand the writers of All in The Family will be using that figure and the "Wages for Housework Committee" as the focus for an episode this season. One can imagine Archie Bunker's reaction when Edith joins up.

For longer terms

Our legislators and top administrative people ought to be spending more time at their jobs and less time campaigning. True enough, but not quite possible.

With legislative elections every two years, the State Representative or the U. S. Congressman is in a bind. He has to make a choice — either attend to his job and face defeat or neglect his job and spend a lot of time visiting with his constituents.

WE HAVE ALWAYS RESISTED four year terms for legislators but gradually in recent years we have moved to the other view. We believe the electorate would benefit by the longer terms.

A governor ought to be elected to a single, four year term. In the past we nearly always gave a capable governor a second term as governor, a total of 4 years. Again, during those first two years he was spending a lot more time running for reelection than he was attending to the State's business. Now he can be reelected for a second four year stint and that's too long in most instances. We are for a single 4 year term for governor.

THE PRESIDENTIAL TERM ought to be six years and removal from office for both the president and the governor should be a somewhat simpler task than what it is now. Now they have to be proven crooks to be removed. In England, for instance, the Prime Minister and his entire government can be brought down by a single no confidence vote. That might be too easy over here.

In the campaign just ending we have seen the encumbent president doing the same as all of his predecessors have done — use the Oval office and all the majestic power of the presidency to win reelection. This is wrong. A single term presidency would end it.

Too, presidential candidates shouldn't have to spend a lot of money to win reelection. Television, a federal gift to station owners, ought to be available for an ample amount of free time (the same should apply to radio stations) to each of the candidates and all this needless, costly and dangerous flying back and forth across the country to get media exposure should end. Candidates should be able to seek and win office without powerful financial backing. There aren't many newspapers that would be seriously hurt if they received no political advertising from the gubernatorial or presidential parties. Less than 1 percent of the SUN's total revenues during this election year is from political advertising. Nation-wide, we calculate, over $100 million is being spent to put a man in the White House.

Our point, more simply, is that our governors and our presidents ought to be in position to quit campaigning and go to work when they are elected. Our legislators and our congressman should be responsible to the people in their own districts but not to the point of having to shirk their duty in Austin and in Washington, as many now must.

What to vote for, or against

Joseph C. Harsch

The American presidential campaign of 1976 is nearly over. It has been marked (1) by the absence of humor (intentional variety), (2) by a regrettable although not unusual indulgence by both sides in slurs, innuendos, misrepresentations, evasions, calumny, and empty promises — and (3) by avoidance by both candidates of serious discussion of the major problems which lie ahead for the American people.

The third point — the avoidance of discussion of the major problems ahead — seems to me to be of first importance to those voters who are still wondering whether to bother to vote at all, or if they do then for which major candidate.

First, let's look at the real problems which can rear up at any moment to confront the next president of the United States.

In foreign policy it is conceivable that the Soviet Union will take military action against China. Perhaps the threat of such action is more plausible than its actual use. But it might happen. And the use, or even the threat of the use, of Soviet military power against China would be deeply disturbing to the whole world.

Indeed, there is nothing which could be more disturbing than such a threat by Moscow since the world today is built around the fact of Moscow's noncontrol over China. The world was dangerously out of balance when Moscow could control China as well as the entire Soviet Union with its Eastern European satellite empire. It has been balanced comfortably for the rest of us from the moment Moscow lost its control over China. An attempt to regain that control by force would threaten everyone else in the world.

Suppose that should happen. How would either Mr. Ford or Mr. Carter handle the problem? Nothing said in the campaign bears on this matter.

Almost equally dangerous would be a military move by Soviet armed forces against Yugoslavia when Marshal Tito is no longer present to keep his conglomerate country together. This is a major concern in every foreign office in Europe. Nothing said in the campaign throws any light on how either Mr. Ford or Mr. Carter would meet that problem.

In the American economy the next president will certainly have to make important decisions affecting the health and the strength of the American economy. Both candidates have indulged in platitudes on the subjects of inflation and unemployment. Mr. Ford has accused Mr. Carter of spendthrift inclinations. Mr. Carter has accused Mr. Ford of callousness toward the workingman. But such charges throw no real light on how either man would meet a serious economic crisis should it emerge.

Perhaps even more important to the future of the American people and of the world at large will be the methods employed to handle the problem of energy. Ever since the oil embargo of 1974 governments have talked about the problem of energy. But what in fact would either Mr. Ford or Mr. Carter do to prepare American industry and the American citizen in his little automobile for the day when oil runs low and natural gas is gone? The subject has scarcely been mentioned in the campaign and yet it may be the single most difficult problem for the next generation.

Neither you nor I can go to the polls and vote for the way one man or the other can be expected to handle any one of these problems of the future. The candidates have not discussed them for the simple reason that the answers to these problems are uncertain. Neither major candidate can know what answer he will attempt to apply to these problems. Neither man has had time to study them or become familiar with the details of the problems or to have mastered the range of possible solutions.

So how do we choose between the candidates?

We have to make the choice on an individual measure of each man. We have to try to decide which will approach any one of these problems in the most wise and prudent manner. Which will choose the better advisers? Which will listen most thoughtfully? Which will think most objectively? Which, once a choice between solutions has been made, will be the firmest in pressing ahead with what is deemed to be the necessary action?

The candidates have exposed themselves in all their imperfections before us. We are remarkably well informed about their faults. These have been mentioned often enough in this newspaper and others. But both men also have some sturdy qualities. Both are good men as goodness is usually measured. Both have survived a grueling campaign in good health and spirits. Both are sturdy enough and thick-skinned enough to stand the heat of high public life.

If the quality of true greatness is in either man, it does not yet show itself. Crisis might bring it out in either, or both. But both are manly enough and able enough and politically skillful enough to have survived the ordeal of the campaign. Both have run the gauntlet. Both are still standing.

Which would be the better man for the job? You must make your own individual choice. But be comfortable as you approach your choice in the knowledge that the American Republic has survived the leadership of several presidents less competent, less sturdy, and less intelligent than either Mr. Ford or Mr. Carter.

The choice is more than just between a Southerner from the Naval Academy and a football player from Michigan. But the difference is not enough to make or break the United States.

Tippy-toe finish?

Awards supper honors local conservationists

Two Georgetown men will be honored during the sixth annual District Awards Supper by the Little River-San Gabriel Soil and Water Conservation District on November 9 at 6 p.m. in the Bartlett Town Hall.

Retired District Judge D. B. Wood will receive an award for Wildlife Conservation; Harlan "Bud" Lee will be honored as the Outstanding Conservation Rancher of the County. Both Judge Wood and Lee have ranches on Highway 29, west of Georgetown.

JUDGE WOOD is credited with making the initial effort that brought the great deer population to west Williamson County.

In 1939, when there were no deer in the county, Judge Wood petitioned and obtained 20 pet fawn from the Texas Game Department, as it was then known.

From this stock, it is said, the thousands of deer in west Williamson County were produced.

Lee has a fine ranch that he and his wife have operated for the past 12 or 15 years. His award at the Bartlett banquet will be in recognition of his outstanding conservation program.

SPEAKER for the occasion will be Johnny Watkins of KWTX-TV and radio of Waco.

"Watkins, who is also a popular farm auctioneer, has for years amused and informed farmers with his popular noon TV program, Ten Acres," said Gilbert E. Kretzschmar of Bartlett, chairman of the LR-SG Board of Directors.

Recognize spoiled foods

Prevent foodborne illness. Throw out food of "questionable safety," Frances Reasonover, a foods and nutrition specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, advises.

"Homemakers can be alert to possible spoiled foods by learning some signs of spoilage in canned vegetables, meats, fish and poultry." Some of these signs are swelled top of jar or can, dents along seams of cans, foam, milky juice, leaks, strange odor.

She cautioned that all spoilage does not have an "off" odor. Home-canned foods should be cooked for 10 to 20 minutes for added safety. Do not taste before cooking.

Letters to the Editor

A persistent theme of the Republican presidential campaign has been to blame "big spending" and "big taxing" on the Democratic Congress. To hear the Republicans tell it, in fact, everything bad that has happened in this country since Gerald Ford became president has been solely the fault of the Democratic Congress!

The FACTS, however, fail to fit the Republican rhetoric.

The truth is that the annual Federal deficit reflected by the presidential budget requests during the 8 years under Presidents Kennedy and Johnson averaged 1.6 billion dollars. In the 8 years immediately following, under Presidents Nixon and Ford, the presidential deficit averaged 14.3 billion dollars. For fiscal year 1976, President Ford's budget requests reflected a deficit of 51.9 billion dollars! Now ask yourself, "Which party's presidents have actually been the big spenders?"

The overpowering reason, of course, for the vastly increased Federal deficits under Nixon and Ford has been the unconscionably high level of unemployment which Republican presidents are willing not only to tolerate, but actually to encourage as an "answer" to inflation.

For every 1% of Americans who are unemployed, it is estimated that the cost to the Federal government is 16 billion dollars — 13 billion in lost tax revenue and 2 billion in unemployment compensation, social services and welfare.

Under Gerald Ford, unemployment has soared to nearly 8%, one of the highest levels in 30 years. Yet, Gerald Ford has consistently vetoed bills passed by the Democratic Congress which would have provided jobs, many in the private sector, for millions of Americans, thereby reducing the heavy drain that high unemployment puts on the Federal budget.

As to which party wants to increase taxes, once again let's look at the RECORD, not the rhetoric.

It was the Democratic Congress that passed the 22.8 billion dollar tax cut. And it was the Democratic Congress that voted in 1975 to extend that 22.8 billion dollar tax cut — only to have the extension vetoed by President Ford, in spite of the fact that he had formally called for it.

The Democratic Congress, determined that the American public would continue to have this tax relief they so deserved and needed, was finally able to satisfy President Ford by adding some extraneous, cosmetic language he demanded, and he reluctantly signed it into law.

This Democratic tax cut includes personal exemptions particularly important to low and middle income families and extends business investment tax cuts and small business investment tax credits, among other areas of needed tax relief.

Does this sound as if the Democrats want to raise our taxes? Of course not! Democrats want — and will attempt to have, under President Jimmy Carter — a healthy economic climate and a balanced Federal budget which puts its spending priorities on people programs designed to improve the quality of life for ALL Americans, and not just the privileged few.

REMEMBERING...

By BILL BROOKS

SCARECROWS

The Brooks kids had a garden one year. Dad said it was high time we learned what it was like to raise a crop of our own. He marked off one corner of a field near our house and gave us the responsibility of choosing what to plant and taking care of it.

We planted seeds and most of them came up. We watered and hoed and eagerly watched the plants as they bloomed and put forth their fruit. We especially watched the watermelons because that was our favorite thing to eat. Each vine had several nice ones and we could hardly wait until they would be ripe enough to pick.

One day as we were inspecting our crops we were dismayed to find that several melons had jagged holes in them. Sitting nonchalantly on the fence nearby was a couple of crows with rounded stomachs full of melon.

"A scarecrow will solve this problem." We took some boards and made a kind of cross. Using gunny sacks we made a body. My sister's knowledge of sewing came in handy for that. We slipped the body over the cross and stuffed it full of wheat straw. It looked really good, almost like a person except with no clothes. It needed a pair of overalls and a shirt we figured, along with a hat and some gloves. Mother said some of Dad's old worn out work clothes would be just fine so we had everything we needed.

We got him dressed and took him to the garden where we dug a hole to stand him up in. He looked good standing there guarding our melons but my sister said he wasn't quite finished. She ran to the house and came back with a face she made from white cloth and crayons. She stitched in it place on the burlap head and I had to admit it was just what he needed.

He wasn't very effective at doing his job however, because crows sometimes came to roost on his arms and hat. I think they would land there to choose which melons they wanted. But whether he really scared them or not didn't matter because there were plenty of melons for us and some to share.

Liberty Hill NEWS

BY HOWARD N. WILSON

We Americans will have an opportunity next Tuesday to vote for the candidate of our choice for President of our Nation. This is, as we should all be aware, a privilege which many people in the world do not have. We should appreciate how valuable our vote is and not fail to go to the polls to exercise our right to make this choice.

There are over 6,000,000 registered voters in Texas, according to a recent report. We should all do our part to disprove the fear of apathy which has been too often the rule in our Nation. LET'S ALL VOTE!

On Sunday, October 31, The First Baptist Church of Liberty Hill will begin a week-long revival with Bro. Tommy Burress doing the preaching. Wendell McLeod will lead the singing, accompanied at the piano by Jeanette Whitehead with Shirl Holder at the organ. On Sunday there will be a morning service at eleven o'clock, and the services will begin at seven-thirty each evening.

The youth of The First Baptist Church will sponsor a "Tacky Party" this Sunday evening after the church services. There will be games for everyone, and refreshments will be served. ALL of the young people in and around the area are invited to come and participate in this party. Come early for the evening service and stay for the party. We feel sure that eveyone will benefit by attending these revival services!

Caucus holds seminar on rape prevention

The Women's Political Caucus is sponsoring a program on rape prevention on Tuesday, November 9, from 7:30 to 9 p.m. in the Georgetown High School theater.

Attacks on women are a local problem, not just a big city problem. Four rapes were reported in Georgetown last year.

This rape seminar is being offered to educate the public. It will cover realities of the problem, preventive behaviors, and attitudes and services which might be helpful to victims of sexual assault.

The agenda for the program includes a 20 minute film entitled, "Rape—a Preventive Inquiry." Following the film, Arlene Lyons, Director of the Rape Crisis Center in Austin, will give a brief talk. A representative of the Austin Police Department will also make a presentation which will be followed by a question and answer period.

Books on rape will be on display and pamphlets will be available. Mature individuals who are interested in being trained to assist rape victims in our community may volunteer at the conference.

St. Peter's Lutheran Church holds annual chili supper

The congregation of St. Peter's Lutheran Church of Walburg will be having a chili supper on November 16. Serving will start at 5:00 p.m.

The menu includes homemade chili, stew, beans, coffee, tea, and homemade apple, coconut, lemon, and chocolate pies.

Chili, stew, and pies will be sold "to go," but you must bring your own container.

There will also be a "Country Store" selling plants and homemade bread, pickles, jellies, pies, cakes and quilts.

EVERY CITIZEN — even the mayor — who receives the free swine flu shot has to read and sign a registration form stating that he understands the benefits and risks of flu vaccination. After the shot has been given, he will receive a small card printed in light blue to keep as a record of the shot. Diane Sansom of Georgetown (right) will be holding volunteer training session for persons interested in helping with the paperwork involved in the weekend clinics.

Mrs. Phoebe Perkins has returned from Phoenix, Arizona where she visited her son, Laguay Fergess and family.

Important information from the U.S. Public Health Service about Swine Flu and Victoria Flu Vaccines (Monovalent)

INTRODUCTION

You probably have heard a good deal about swine flu and swine flu vaccine. You may know, for example, that swine flu caused an outbreak of several hundred cases at Ft. Dix, New Jersey, early in 1976—and that before then swine flu had not caused outbreaks among people since the 1920's.

With the vast majority of Americans being susceptible to swine flu, it is possible that there could be an epidemic this winter. No one can say for sure. However, if an epidemic were to break out, millions of people could get sick. Therefore, a special swine flu vaccine has been prepared and tested which should protect most people who receive it.

Certain people, such as those with chronic medical problems and the elderly, need annual protection against flu. Therefore, besides protection against swine flu, they also need protection against another type of flu (Victoria flu) that was around last winter and could occur again this winter. A separate vaccine has been prepared to give them protection against both types of flu.

These vaccines have been field tested and shown to produce very few side effects. Some people who received the vaccine had fever and soreness during the first day or two after vaccination. These tests and past experience with other flu vaccines indicate that anything more severe than this would be highly unlikely.

Many people ask questions about flu vaccination during pregnancy. An advisory committee of the Public Health Service examined this question and reported that "there are no data specifically to contraindicate vaccination with the available killed virus vaccine in pregnancy. Women who are pregnant should be considered as having essentially the same balance of benefits and risks regarding influenza vaccination and influenza as the general population."

As indicated, some individuals will develop fever and soreness after vaccination. If you have more severe symptoms or if you have fever which lasts longer than a couple of days after vaccination, please consult your doctor or a health worker wherever you receive medical care.

While there is no reason to expect more serious reactions to this flu vaccination, persons who believe that they have been injured by this vaccination may have a claim. The Congress recently passed a law providing that such claims, with certain exceptions, may be filed only against the United States Government. Information regarding the filing of claims may be obtained by writing to the U.S. Public Health Service Claims Office, Parklawn Building, 5600 Fishers Lane, Rockville, Maryland 20852.

Below is more information about flu and flu vaccine. Please take the time to read it carefully. You will be asked to sign this form indicating that you understand this information and that you consent to vaccination.

The Disease. Influenza (flu) is caused by viruses. When people get flu they may have fever, chills, headache, dry cough or muscle aches. Illness may last several days or a week or more, and complete recovery is usual. However, complications may lead to pneumonia or death in some people. For the elderly and people with diabetes or heart, lung, or kidney diseases, flu may be especially serious.

It is unlikely that you have adequate natural protection against swine flu, since it has not caused widespread human outbreaks in 45 years.

The Vaccine. The vaccine will not give you flu because it is made from killed viruses. Today's flu vaccines cause fewer side effects than those used in the past. In contrast with some other vaccines, flu vaccine can be taken safely during pregnancy.

One shot will protect most people from swine flu during the next flu season; however, either a second shot or a different dosage may be required for persons under age 25. If you are under 25 and a notice regarding such information is not attached, this information will be provided to you wherever you receive the vaccine.

Possible Vaccine Side Effects. Most people will have no side effects from the vaccine. However, tenderness at the site of the shot may occur and last for several days. Some people will also have fever, chills, headache, or muscle aches within the first 48 hours.

Special Precautions. As with any vaccine or drug, the possibility of severe or potentially fatal reactions exists. However, flu vaccine has rarely been associated with severe or fatal reactions. In some instances people receiving vaccine have had allergic reactions. You should note very carefully the following precautions:

- Children under a certain age should not routinely receive flu vaccine. Please ask about age limitations if this information is not attached.
- People with known allergy to eggs should receive the vaccine only under special medical supervision.
- People with fever should delay getting vaccinated until the fever is gone.
- People who have received another type of vaccine in the past 14 days should consult a physician before taking the flu vaccine.

If you have any questions about flu or flu vaccine, please ask.

County residents now have access to cancer information

A new "weapon" against cancer is now available in Williamson County to provide the public with current, factual information on cancer, its prevention and early detection.

Called the Cancer Information Service, the new program utilizes a toll-free phone line (1-800-392-2040) to answer public inquiries on cancer. The service will be extended to all residents of Texas by late this year.

The CIS is part of a public educational effort sponsored by The University of Texas M. D. Anderson Hospital and Tumor Institute with assistance from the American Red Cross, American Cancer Society and many other health agencies in Texas which provide services to cancer patients and their families.

Funded by the National Cancer Institute, the CIS functions as part of a nation-wide network.

The phone lines are open from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. on weekdays and operated by trained American Red Cross volunteers. All background material used to answer questions is reviewed by physicians to insure accuracy.

The program is designed to help create a positive sense of awareness about cancer that will encourage the public to seek physician evaluation for early detection and prompt treatment of suspected cancers.

In addition to answering questions on the telephone, the CIS staff will mail pamphlets published by health organizations, professional societies and government agencies involved in health education to interested persons.

I THINK SMALL BUSINESS SHOULD HAVE A BIGGER VOICE IN OUR GOVERNMENT.

"You know better than anybody what the Ford Administration has done for small businesses in this country. Absolutely nothing! There's been no consistent policy, no direction, no leadership. Nothing but neglect and loan cutbacks. Nothing but a shrinking share of our nation's manufacturing and profits. Nothing but 30,000 bankruptcies last year alone. It's disgusting when you have to work night and day just to survive, while the White House rubs shoulders with special interests on the golf course. As President, I'm going to change that. Because I believe the heart and soul of our free enterprise system rests with you. And I intend to see that you get your fair share of its rewards."

GOVERNMENT REORGANIZATION: "Right now there are at least nine agencies and departments directly responsible for assisting small business. In actual fact, their authority has become so diluted that not one of them is truly accountable. I am going to reorganize the federal bureaucracy. From top to bottom. I did it in Georgia and I can do it on the federal level. We need a government that's efficient, competent, honest and open again. We need to develop programs and policies that are fair and equal to small business again."

SMALL BUSINESS PARITY: "You've been harrassed and restricted through excessive guidelines, through executive orders and regulatory edicts. As President, I don't want a bigger voice in small business. I want small business to have a bigger voice in government. I want to see strong small business programs. I want to see new businesses, new jobs, new products, new markets. I want to see America on the move again."

CAPITAL SHORTAGES: "I will work to strengthen government financing programs, to guarantee small business viable sources of equity and financing on a parity with big business."

INTEREST RATES: "As President, my economic policy will be to stimulate growth. There's absolutely no reason why we can't maintain an adequate capital supply for small businessmen and women at reasonable interest rates."

INNOVATION: "There's no excuse for the growing number of foreign companies marketing their technology in the U.S. Not when we're capable ourselves. We need to implement programs to encourage small business in technological innovation. There's so much that needs to be done. In developing energy, in environmental protection, in transportation, in construction and communication."

FEDERAL PROCUREMENT: "I'm tired, just like you, of Republican lip service to small business. It's time for work, not talk, to make sure you as a small businessman receive your fair share of the federal procurement dollar."

REGULATORY POLICIES: "We need to reform our federal regulatory agencies, their reporting requirements and their tax laws. We need to get the government off of our backs for a change."

ANTITRUST AND DIVESTITURE: "We need tough enforcement of our antitrust laws. And strong protection from price discrimination. We need to share the goal of maintaining our system of free enterprise and its returns. I think the government should work with you, not scorn you."

TAX REFORM: "Our tax laws are a national disgrace. As President, I will work with you and Congress to take the burden off the small businessman and wage earner. I am not going to head an administration that kowtows to the interests and pressures of powerful lobbyist groups. I want an America where everybody puts up their fair share."

IF YOU'RE TIRED OF A GOVERNMENT WHICH OPERATES BEHIND CLOSED DOORS, FROM WEAKNESS RATHER THAN STRENGTH. IF YOU WANT A VOICE IN THE WAY OUR COUNTRY IS RUN, IN THE WAY YOUR BUSINESS IS RUN. YOU HAVE ONLY ONE CHOICE ON NOVEMBER 2ND. AND THAT CHOICE IS CLEAR.

Charlotte Hardi presents senior piano recital

Charlotte Hardi, pianist, will be presented in recital on Thursday, November 4, at 8 p.m. in the Recital Hall in the Alma Thomas Fine Arts Center at Southwestern University.

Assisting Miss Hardi in her senior recital will be Sonja Brown, pianist.

The public is invited to attend the program.

Misses Hardi and Brown will be performing Bach's Choral Prelude, "In Thee Is Gladness" and "Sheep May Safely Graze" and Poulenc's "Sonate" (prelude, rustique and final). Miss Hardi will play Brahms' "Rhapsody, Op. 79, No. 2" and Kennan's "Three Preludes" (allegro scherzando, lento and allegro con fuoco).

Charlotte Hardi, a candidate for graduation in the spring from the School of Fine Arts at Southwestern University, is majoring in music education with piano as an area of concentration. A frequent performer on the university campus and in the area, Miss Hardi has been presented in recitals as soloist and accompanist for other musicians. She is studying piano with Mrs. Jane Lansford of the music faculty in the School of Fine Arts.

Memberships for Miss Hardi include Alpha Chi, Alpha Delta Pi and Delta Omicron, serving as secretary for Delta Nu chapter of the international professional music fraternity. In addition to her academic work, Miss Hardi also serves as organist for the First United Methodist Church in Taylor. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Otis Hardi of Coupland.

Sonja Brown, also a candidate for graduation in the spring at Southwestern University, is majoring in music education with piano, organ and clarinet as areas of concentration. In addition to performing as soloist and accompanist, Miss Brown is a member of the University Chorale and Southwestern Singers. She has served on the Student Judiciary and as vice-president of Panhellenic. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Roger C. Brown of Dayton.

A reception will honor the recitalists in the Gallery of the Alma Thomas Fine Arts Center immediately following the program.

The Georgetown 4-H Club Livestock Group elected 1976-77 officers during a meeting in the Livestock Building at Georgetown's San Gabriel Park on October 25.

Also that night, an officers group from the Jonah 4-H Club attended a County Officers Training Workshop at Hutto High School.

Group leaders for the Livestock Group will be: Eddie Rogers — swine; Dan Richter—sheep; Tom Davenport—poultry; and Fred C. Smith—beef.

Members present at the Livestock Group's meeting were John Wakefield, Karen Smith, Kim Richter, Tracy Hunt, Maury Cairnes, Regina Rodgers, Kendall Stone, Elizabeth Burgeson, Lisa Wakefield, Vicki Leschber, Paul Pausewang, Glenn Peschel, and Janet Wenzel.

The group's next meeting will be held in the Livestock Building at 1:30 p.m. Saturday, November 6.

The Officers' Training Workshop consisted of informal work groups where parliamentary procedures and the duties of each office were stressed.

Girls report to Opti Mrs.

Barbara Berkman received a certificate from Mrs. Oscar Bengston of the Round Rock American Legion Women's Auxiliary on behalf of Bluebonnet Girls' State. Barbara was the recipient of the Opti Mrs. award to represent Georgetown at this ten-day study of Texas government. She attended the Monday club meeting with her mother, Mrs. Leroy Berkman, to report on her activities during those ten days.

Louise Wilcox, the member representative from Opti Mrs. who worked with Barbara on Girls' State, also received an award from Mrs. Bengston.

Each year 2 Girl Scouts are sponsored by the club to attend a 2 week session at Tex Lake Girl Scout Camp. Melissa Douglas and Susan Andrews, the girls sponsored this year, came to the meeting to tell those present what they did and what they learned there. The 2 girls were accompanied by Mrs. Hershel Sheperd, Neighborhood Chairperson for Georgetown Girl Scouts.

Opti Mrs. hold fund-raiser

The Georgetown Opti Mrs. annual dinner and auction will be held at 7 p.m., November 4, at the San Gabriel Recreation Center.

This fund-raising auction is the event that finances the club's civic projects. Members are encouraged to invite guests.

There will be handmade items, homecanned goods, baked goods, plants, hanging baskets and many surprises.

MOD spooks

As ghosts leave their resting places and the mist rises from the deep, shrieks pierce the stillness of the night from the "House of the Witches' Moon". The March of Dimes "House of the Witches' Moon" haunted house is the place where the screams are produced. Open from 7 to 12 p.m. through Halloween night, the ghosts and goblins are dressed in their scary best and ready to make visitors scream in delightful horror.

Visitors should enter from the North parking lot of Northcross Mall. There, for a fee of $2 for adults and $1 for children under 18, all comers will be treated to the sights and sounds of ghoulish fantasy.

Proceeds from ticket sales will benefit the Capital Area Chapter of the March of Dimes.

Local AAUW plans blood drive

The Bloodmobile Unit of the Travis County Medical Society will be stationed at the Georgetown Community Center on Wednesday, December 1, from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. Anyone between 18 and 66 years of age and in good health may give blood.

In the last few years Georgetown people have experienced shortages in many of the things we consider necessities of life. Blood is a necessity of life, however. It is one of the things we really cannot do without and in cases of emergency it is often only available through a blood bank.

Last year the Georgetown Medical and Surgical Hospital used 150 units of blood. Most of this 150 units came from the Travis County Medical Society Blood Bank, a non-profit community supported service. They provide whole blood and blood components to 22 hospitals in Austin and surrounding communities. Blood is accepted only from volunteer donors and it is tested for antibodies and the presence of hepatitis before it is released.

In order to build up a blood bank and make blood available in case of emergencies, a blood drive is being conducted in the Georgetown area and West Williamson County to secure donors. This drive is sponsored by the Georgetown Branch of the American Association of University Women with the cooperation of the service clubs, churches, schools, sororities and local and area businesses.

Local citizens wishing to give blood between the hours of 9 a.m. and 5 p.m. should come to the Community Center (no appointment necessary). Persons unable to come during these hours may call Mrs. R. M. Medley at 863-2736 to sign up for appointments after 5 p.m.

Florence council postpones meet

The regular Florence City Council meeting will not be held November 2, the first Tuesday of the month, due to the presidential election.

Councilmen will meet in the Florence City Hall November 9 at 7 p.m. instead.

Methodists plan barbecue

The Homebuilders Class of St. John's Methodist Church is having a barbecue, November 14, from 12 to 2 p.m. The feast will be spread in the church fellowship hall at 311 East University Avenue in Georgetown.

Tickets are $2.50 and plates are available to take out or eat at the church. Proceeds will go to the "Lord's Acre" project.

HOPE YOU'RE HUNGRY — Mr. and Mrs. Nick Onjanow and Mr. and Mrs. Bob Phelan holding a poster for the St. Elias Lebanese food festival, November 7. Ya'll come.

St. Elias holds 36th annual Lebanese Food Festival

Mr. and Mrs. Nick Onjanow and Mr. and Mrs. Bob Phelan wish to invite all their friends in Georgetown to attend the 36th annual Lebanese Food Festival, November 7 at St. Elias Orthodox Church, 408 East Eleventh Street in Austin.

The celebration will begin at 11:30 a.m. and end at 7:30 p.m., featuring a traditional Lebanese dinner and Lebanese, Greek and Russian pastries.

The depression of the 1930's spurred the women of the church to begin these food fairs. To raise money to build THE church building, they baked bread and pastries which they sold to their neighbors. The building was completed in 1934, largely due to the efforts of these church women.

St. Elias is Austin's only Eastern Orthodox parish, serving Orthodox Christians of all national origins.

Tickets for the event may be purchased at the door, or reservations may be made by calling Mrs. Sam Attal at 472-0208, or Mrs. Joe Zebug at 478-4834. For food to take home, call 476-2314 any time during the day November 7.

Kennard speaks to Taylor Club on Wednesday

Claude Kennard, art historian in the School of Fine Arts at Southwestern University, will give an illustrated talk entitled "Roses of Yesterday and Today" for members of the Taylor Study Club on Wednesday, November 3, at 10 a.m. in the home of Mrs. Franklin Schlesinger, 1218 West Seventh Street in Taylor.

A coffee at 9 a.m. will honor the guest speaker and members of the club. Ms. Janice Kollman is program chairman.

Kennard is a frequent speaker for cultural, educational and civic organizations. A graduate of the University of Texas at Austin with a bachelor of arts and master of arts degrees, Kennard has done further graduate study at the University of Texas. An avid traveller, Kennard has visited various sections of the world.

Prior to joining the art faculty in the School of Fine Arts at Southwestern University in 1965 as art historian and director of the Gallery in the Alma Thomas Fine Arts Center, Kennard, associate professor, was lecturer in art at the University of Texas at Austin. He has also served as guest lecturer at Instituto Allende, San Mighel de Allende (State of Guanajuato), Mexico, and director of the Beaumont Museum of Fine Arts in Beaumont.

St. Edward's hosts youth

Teenagers from St. Helen's Church experienced a day of recollection and fun at St. Edwards' University in Austin on October 24. The youth belonging to St. Helen's Serendipity CCD for high school students and St. Helen's high school CYO.

The program began at 1 p.m. with films, skits and singing. The theme for the day was "God's Gifts to Us." The days activities dealt with how we return these gifts to Him through our own lives.

A Mass was conducted at 5 p.m. with folk singing and music. Dinner followed at 6 p.m. and a dance at 7:30 p.m. with live music played by "The Sunshine Ally Band" rounded out the events of the day.

St. Helen's sent 23 students and 5 adults. They joined a group of 300 other youth at St. Edward's for the study and fun-filled afternoon.

Tuesday, the day of the electorate

Locally, the first commissioner's race challenged by an area Republican; nationally, the contest for a national Chief of State: the voters' decision in Tuesday balloting will determine the shape of things to come to Georgetown during the next four years.

The November 2 general election this Tuesday will be held in Williamson County at 22 different polling places, from 7 a.m. until 7 p.m.

The county's 26,177 voters are urged to bring their voter registration cards to the polls in order to facilitate the procedure, when they vote.

While persons who are registered on the poll list but who have not brought their cards will be allowed to vote, they must sign a series of affadavits attesting to the loss of the cards, a time-consuming procedure for clerks working at the election.

In addition to deciding the Precinct 1 county commissioner race — which Democrat Carl Lidell and Republican Jimmy Coffman, both of Georgetown are seeking, voters will choose a slate of local, county, district, state and national officials to serve during the next four years.

Heading the oversize 16x22" ballot is the most contested race in the nation.

Not only Democrat Jimmy Carter with running mate Walter Mondale and the Republican President Gerald R. Ford with his vice-presidential choice, Robert Dole, but American Party candidates Thomas J. Anderson and running-mate Rufus Shackelford; Socialist Workers Party nominee Peter Camejo with vice-presidential hopeful Willie Mae Reid; and independent Eugene J. McCarthy lead the list as presidential candidates.

In Williamson County, incumbent Precinct 3 Constable Lee Hays faces write in candidate James M. Burnett, also of Liberty Hill. Burnett, a recently-announced candidate, did not compete in either spring primary when Hays was unopposed.

All running on the Democratic ticket, the candidates are all incumbents with the exception of Drummond. After winning his campaign against two other Democrats during the May primary, Drummond will fill the position vacated by Constable Johnnie Roepke. Roepke was defeated in the sheriff's contest during the May primary.

WILLIAMSON COUNTY'S slate of unopposed officers includes County Attorney-elect Billy Ray Stubblefield as well as incumbent Sheriff August Bosshard and Tax Assessor William Buck.

Two newcomers to politics are entered on the Democratic side of the ballot for positions in the district court.

Unopposed, Bill Lott of Georgetown seeks the district judgeship while Edward J. Walsh of Round Rock won the Democratic nomination for district attorney.

In selecting state officials, voters are being asked to consider not only Democratic nominee Don Yarbrough for Supreme Court Association Justice, but write-in challengers Sam Houston and Tom Lorance.

The office of Railroad Commissioner remained very contested after primary season ended, as the Democrats fielded Jon Newton, and with Walter Wendlandt as the Republican nominee, Fred Rodriguez Garza representing the Raza Unida party and Pat O'Reilly as the candidate presented by the Socialist Workers party.

WHETHER YOU LIVE in Congressional District 10 (western Williamson County) or 11 (the eastern section), the incumbent U. S. Representative has a Republican challenger.

For Georgetown — as well as persons whose registration cards show they live in Election Precinct 3, 4, 6, 9, 10, 11, 12, or 30 — the challenge is between Democrat J. J. (Jake) Pickle and Republican Paul McClure.

It's Republican Jack Burgess challenging Democrat W. R. (Bob) Poage in the eastern end of the county. Precints 5, 13, 15, 20, 21, 23, 25, 27, 28, 33 and 34.

Not only Republican Alan Steelman but American Party candidate Marjorie P. Gallion and Pedro Vasquez of the Socialist Workers Party are challenging Democratic incumbent Lloyd Bentsen for his position as U. S. Senator.

Little spending seen in local campaigning

The big-time spending is over.

It ended with the large lists of primary candidates racing for the same office this spring, when $65,768 was spent winning the two primaries locally.

While a record nine candidates — including, for the first time in county history, two Republican contenders — waged a $9,339 battle for the position of Precinct 1 County Commissioner, only a little over $100 more has been expended.

While he reported no contributions, his opponent, Republican nominee James Coffman, reported no contribution or expenditures.

Coffman reported receiving $50 in contributions since the last reporting period, in July.

CANDIDATES in contested races are required to report all campaign contributions and expenditures at specified intervals before and after each election.

Altogether, as of seven days before the election, Lidell had spent $1,482.83 to win the Democratic nomination over six other contenders. The spending included the expenses of a runoff contest with R. J. Woytek.

Coffman, who took the Republican nomination over contender Carroll Smyers of Round Rock, reported spending $607.39 between the February filing date and October 26.

To date, Lidell has reported $734 in contributions to Coffman's $50.

ALSO CONTESTED LOCALLY is the constable's seat for Precinct 3.

While incumbent Lee Hays of Liberty Hill was unopposed during primary balloting last spring, write-in challenger James M. Burnett, also of Liberty Hill, has since declared his candidacy.

Burnett reported contributions of $32.50 and $98.17 in expenditures prior to the election.

Hays reported no contributions but expenditures of $168.30, including the $150 filing fee paid the Democratic Party before the February filing deadline.

Hill welcomed in timely arrival

"Attorney General Hill just called his regrets — he won't be able to be here," Bill Stubblefield, Carter-Mondale co-chairman in Williamson County began, but quickly interrupted himself.

"That's him — he's here!"

The cancellation wasn't for Georgetown, and 30 county Democrats were treated to an after-breakfast campaign boost for Jimmy Carter from the Texas official.

Expressing confidence in Carter's concern for Texas, the Attorney General told the group, "I like him — he's our kind of folks."

Recently selected the attorney general on Washington Monthly magazine's all-star state government team, Hill also encouraged the Democrats to continue their campaign efforts for Carter unflaggingly.

"I want you to work hard these last days. I know that people do want a change; they want to turn out the Watergate crowd; they want to start this country fresh again."

Citing the Democratic presidential nominee as "the man who really has the savvy and knowledge in this energy thing," Hill praised Carter as the man most able to work out "a positive program in this very, very critical field."

He also listed Carter's ability to solve the nation's energy problem without harming the environment, as well as his sensitivity to such human concerns as education and health, as pluses for the candidate.

QUERIED by Art Johnston of Georgetown about Mrs. Lyndon Johnson's support of Carter, Hill pointed out that Mrs. Johnson has publicly stated she will support the candidate.

Although Hill will escort Carter on a weekend trip from McAllen to San Antonio and the Dallas-Fort Worth area, he explained that because the schedule did not include an Austin stopover, "It is unlikely for the two of them to get together.

"Jimmy Carter's unfortunate statement that President Johnson was a mistake and politically did not make any sense. I am sure he regrets it.

"It was made after the interview with Playboy was entirely over but the tape was still rolling. He said Nixon and Johnson were lying and cheating about Viet Nam. Whether he really meant that, or associated all presidents with that war, I don't know.

"But Lady Bird is one of the greatest women that God ever made and it is typical of her that she very graciously accepted his apology."

"IF YOU WILL read the whole Playboy interview, if you liked Jimmy Carter before, you will like him more; if you didn't like him you will learn to like him.

"It's hard for me to believe that anyone is going to vote on just one statement. She's said she's going to support the ticket and she's said she's going to support Governor Carter."

They're driving Georgetown to vote

Supporting President Gerald Ford's campaign effort 100 percent, members of the Republican Women's Club of Williamson County have planned a telephone canvass of Georgetown as well as an election day shuttle service to the polls to encourage Georgetownites to vote.

"We are not trying to take any information about how people are voting. It's strictly to encourage people to vote no matter what, because Texas is going to be such a close state," said Jane Holder, president of the Republican Women's Club. "I think the main issue is we don't want to give up a two-party state."

"And we hope to have some kind of Ford demonstation outside each of the polling places in Georgetown — outside the line, of course," added club member I. J. Wilkerson, who joined the group after her August move to Georgetown from Alaska. "Southwestern University is completely organized. There are Students for Steelman and Students for Ford totally organized to help."

The telephone canvass is being conducted by Georgetown women who voted in the Republican primary, calling their friends to urge them to vote. "We will take any volunteers at anytime; anyone who wants Ford in office is welcome to come help," said Mrs. Holder.

She also predicted a good voter turnout Tuesday saying, "I think we will have more people vote than you think."

While Mrs. Wilkerson has set up a Neighborhood Headquarters station for Ford in her home at 2402 Gabriel View, Ford Headquarters for the women's group is at 707 Rock.

American Legion Auxiliary

Renovation claims old fire escape on SU Ad building

THE LAST SLIDE — Don Cemper, supervising renovation of the Administration Building at Southwestern University, takes the last trip down the old fire escape slide on the historic building. Hundreds of students through the decades have shrugged off dire warnings and disciplinary action for a thrilling slide, sometimes on wax paper, on the three-story apparatus. But now the old escape route is down to make room for safer facilities.

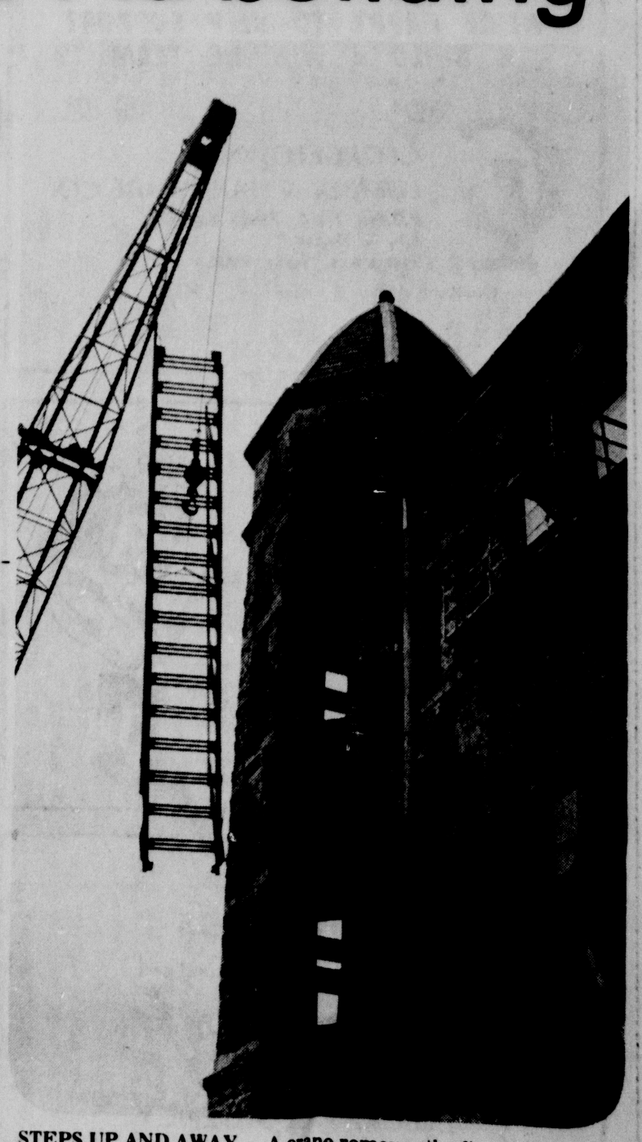
"DOWN EASY" — the first section of the slide is lowered to earth by a skilled crane operator.



STEPS UP AND AWAY — A crane removes the fire escape from the east side of the building. The $1.2 million renovation of the building is more than half complete and slightly ahead of schedule.

FOOTBALL CONTEST
PICK THE WINNERS AND WIN A PRIZE

Here's How You Play:

HERE WE GO AGAIN! It's football time -- and time for the annual County SUN Football Contest. If you're a Saturday morning armchair quarterback, you can enter this fun Contest and check up on yourself! Might even win a little money at it or a free theater ticket.

Here's a game to test your skill -- it's a game that the whole family can enjoy. Spread this page out on the kitchen table. Let everybody play. There'll be a new contest each week until about the middle of November.
So ready, get set, GO!

- Win $10, $5 or $3 for first, second or third respectively
- Next five winners may pick up a free ticket to the Palace Theater!
- Pick up all prizes and theater tickets at The SUN.
- The only notification of the winners will be in the following week's issue.
- See this week's football games on this page.
- In each game, check the team you think will win. (You do NOT need to indicate score).
- Unless all games are marked, your entry will be automatically disqualified.
- Then to eliminate as nearly as possible any ties in this fun-test, every entry must have the score marked on "The Tie Breaker" game listed at right.
- Only one entry per person will be qualified, but as many from a family may enter as wish to do so -- except employees and families of the Williamson County SUN.
- You may enter the fun-test on this page. Or you may copy the games on another sheet of paper, indicating your pick in each game.
- All entries must be brought to The SUN by 5:00 p.m. Friday or mailed with a postmark not later than 7:00 p.m. Friday of each week. The SUN will grade all entries, and The SUN's decision will be Final and incontestable.
- Have FUN! And patronize the businesses whc make this fun-test possible.

KEVIN TIGHE, as paramedic DeSoto, finds it hard to get away from his new friend, a so-called ferocious dog that turns out to be just a big fellow who is overly playful on Emergency!, Nov. 6 (8-9 p.m., ET) over NBC.

TV Dialogue

KIN FOLK -- Please tell me where I can write to Blythe Danner. My maiden name is Danner. Both my parents are deceased and I know very little about my father's family. I am wondering if we could be related as both Blythe Danner and my father are from Pennsylvania. Betsy Durrenberger, Wykoff, New Jersey.

Since Danner is not currently under contract, your best bet would be to write her in care of The Screen Actors Guild and ask them to forward it. The address is: 7750 West Sunset Boulevard, Los Angeles, Calif. Good luck.

* * *

DIGS DARREN -- For years now I have been a fan of James Darren. One thing I've noticed is that he never seems to get much older looking. How old is he anyway? Also, could you tell me what his real name is? Mary Ann Convoy, Lebanon, Pa.

You may not be able to tell it by his looks, but your hero is 40 years old. His real name is James Ercolani, befitting an Italian kid from Philadelphia.

* * *

BYE BYE BRIDES -- Do you know if the television series Here Comes the Brides is going to be put on again? J. Yancey, Elon College, N.C.

Once a show on television is cancelled, that's it. Here Comes the Brides is, however, being sold nationally in syndication. Check with your local TV station to see if they have plans of picking up reruns of the series. If not, you'll have to convince them to do so.

* * *

SON OF COMIC -- Is Michael Lembeck, who plays Clete on Mary Hartman, Mary Hartman, by any chance related to Harvey Lembeck, who used to be on Phil Silver's Bilco show? Murray Eisman, Waterbury, Conn.

* * *

CHASING CHASE -- Where can I write to Chevy Chase of Saturday Night? Sue Ann Phillips, Biwabik, Minn.

Since Saturday Night originates in New York, you can write to him at NBC's office there -- NBC, Rockefeller Plaza, New York, N.Y. 10019.

* * *

BRACE YOURSELF -- Why don't they put braces on Melissa Gilbert's (of Little House on the Prairie) teeth? It would be a shame to let them go uncorrected. P.R., Milton, W. Va.

Susan Clark bucks 'super' stereotype

By DAN LEWIS

SUSAN CLARK: no more superwomen roles.

Susan Clark portrayed Babe Didriksen Zaharias and she learned how to play golf. Then she portrayed Amelia Earhart, and so she learned how to fly a single-engine plane.

Now she's been asked to do another film biography for television, this time the famous French fashion designer Coco Channel, but Clark is neither interested in learning how to make like a fashion designer nor play another famous lady.

So she turned down that last offer.

So, Amelia Earhart will be it for the time being.

"Amelia Earhart," in its TV version, was not a political vehicle. It was, in a sense, the story of an air-struck young lady whose infatuation with flying catapulted her into international fame, honored by heads of state, idolized by Americans.

Her death has remained a controversy. The rumors persist to this day that when her plane disappeared in 1938, it was all part of a plan calculated by President Roosevelt and the U.S. defense forces to take reconnaisance photos over Japanese-held islands in the Pacific.

A film made years ago, starring Roz Russell, suggested that the ingenious scheme was for Miss Earhart's plane to run out of fuel, so she could ditch in the ocean. In sending out rescue planes, which would in reality be reconnaisance aircraft, they could photograph the military strength of the Japanese.

"This alleged ploy was never proved," Clark maintains. "Roosevelt spent $4 million in four days searching for her plane. There is no mention (of such a plan) in the Roosevelt papers."

Clark doubts the Roosevelt collusion story.

Shirley MacLaine has been attempting to produce a film on Amelia Earhart for several years now. The NBC version has won the race, but it does leave room for MacLaine's story since her script accepts the Roosevelt theory.

Clark has read the MacLaine script, although how she got her hands on a copy remains a secret.

"Scripts get around," she says coyly. "Shirley's script is interesting, but it deals mostly with the supposition that Amelia and her flight engineer were captured by the Japanese, and held incommunicado."

"There's no doubt that he wasn't her lover," Clark insisted. "Noonan had just gotten married before the flight, and he went because he wanted money."

What does Clark think really happened to Amelia Earhart?

"My feeling is that her plane, an Electra, had a flying range of 3,000 miles. She left the plane's trailing antennae in Miami because of weight.

"They were heading into strange territory. They apparently miscalculated. I think the plane went down in the Pacific, crashed, and sank."

Having portrayed two super women, which was the more difficult role for her?

"Amelia was much more difficult. She was a much more complicated personality. She was ambivalent about her marriage, shy, introspective, and embarrassed about all the publicity she got. Her renown surpassed that of Babe's. Amelia was honored by heads of state. The public adored her like a pop star today."

If superwomen are out for now, then what next?

"You Should See What You're Missing" will show you just that, all the controversial scenes that have been cut out of TV shows on commercial television in recent years. The show, which is set to air Friday, Nov. 26 over PBS, offers ten top TV writers, editors, producers and directors voicing their frustrations over the various forms of censorship they've encountered.

The interviews will be liberally sprinkled with footage, so you'll be able to judge for yourself whether the "protection" you're getting from the commercial networks is needed or wanted.

Here are some of the thoughts of people who have been caught in the middle of the cutting game.

"People who bring ideas to television development people are often invited really to leave their brains and their hearts and their feelings outside the door." Larry Gelbart, co-producer/writer of M*A*S*H

"There are so many talented writers, directors and actors, I just can't help thinking what a pity it is that we don't have a medium that calls out for the best, but calls out for the worst in them." Abby Mann, creator/writer of Medical Story

"If you do something that everybody likes of necessity you abdicate all points of view, you eliminate all controversy, and what you wind up with is a kind of innocuous pablum." Danny Arnold, executive producer of Barney Miller

Tennessee Williams Pulitzer Prize-winning play, "Cat on a Hot Tin Roof," starring Laurence Olivier, Natalie Wood, Robert Wagner and Maureen Stapleton, has been set for a December 6th showing on NBC Monday Night at the Movies.

This production will launch "A Tribute to American Theatre," a series of major drama specials drawn from the works of leading 20th century American playwrights. Olivier is creative and artistic producer as well as occasional performer. Titles for future productions have yet to be announced by the network.

'I take it as it comes'

No game plan for Carol Burnett

By DAN LEWIS

"My whole life has never been a game plan," Carol Burnett noted. "I take it as it comes . . . and it's worked."

She paused, thought, then added:

"Ten years in the same job in this business is very fortunate. I have no complaints, no matter what happens."

She is a rarity in television. In an era when comedy and variety shows on a weekly basis have not flourished, Carol has been successful for a decade, defying the trend. CBS thought so much of Carol and her Saturday night gang that the network flew them all into New York -- Harvey Korman (who already has announced his decision to leave the show next season for an ABC series of his own), Vicki Lawrence and Tim Conway (elevated from "frequent guest" to a regular this season) -- for a special tribute to Carol just before the season started. The network also flew in press from around the country for the occasion.

CBS has good cause to be grateful to Carol. She started at the network in 1962 on a 10-year contract, which gave her the choice of shows in the first five years. It meant, Carol recalled, that she had the option to pick her own type of show, and whatever it was, CBS had to put the series on the air.

For almost five years, Carol couldn't make up her mind. She and her producer-husband Joe Hamilton finally made the decision to go with variety just a week before the first half of the original contract expired. Had she not come to a decision, Carol would have been at CBS' mercy for the next five years of the contract.

CBS wasn't wild about the variety idea. In fact, Carol was assigned one of the more treacherous hours of the week -- Saturday at 10 p.m.

"I just figured that variety is what I felt I could do best on television. And if I failed, I wanted to fail on my own terms," Carol reflected. "CBS was so unenthusiastic about comedy-variety, they even had a replacement show all set to go into my hour."

The rest is history. She has become one of television's biggest stars, a Saturday night staple. And each succeeding season marks little change in the show's concept. In fact, Carol notes, the only real change in the 10 years is the addition of Tim Conway as a regular this season.

"The show changes by nature, as people do," she observed. "Things evolve. Our new characters have all started as one-time sketches. We did the family skit two years ago and it worked well. So it stayed. Tim wrote the harried boss character last year and it was very funny. It, too, is staying."

This year, Carol also is hoping to successfully introduce a new personality onto the show. Her name is Kay Cole, and Carol and her husband picked her out of "Chorus Line," the big Broadway musical hit.

"She only has a small role (in "Chorus Line") but you haven't heard a Broadway voice like this in years. She only weighs about a pound and a half. We flew her in for a taping. She's got a cute personality, and she's an actress who sings and dances."

The formula that has been successful for Carol over these ten years has been the development of larger-than-life characters and playing them for the big laughs.

"We don't go for jokes," Carol said. "I'm kind of from the old school. I love pratt falls and slapstick. That's become a dirty word in this era of satire and caustic comedy."

Perhaps as noted earlier, Carol doesn't work from a game plan, but that doesn't mean she won't think of doing other things. She has a Thanksgiving night special with Beverly Sills -- "Sills and Burnett at the Met" -- on CBS-TV.

She also would like to do a film, and she would like to do a TV special with Dick Van Dyke (she guest-starred in one of Dick's new shows this season on NBC).

She would like to do a television version of another Broadway hit. Several seasons back, she costarred with Alan Alda in "Six Rooms, Riv Vu," and enjoyed it immensely. Now she's eyeing "Guys and Dolls."

"I've always wanted to play Adelaide," she confided.

In recent years, part of her hiatus has been occupied with theater in California. She talked George Kennedy into making his stage debut in "Plaza Suite," then convinced Rock Hudson to do likewise in "I Do, I Do." Now she's hoping to do "Same Time, Next Year" with George Segal.

But if the Hollywood actor is afraid of the stage, Carol's children aren't. All three -- Carrie, 12; Jody, 9; and Erin, 8 -- are interested in acting, Carol reported. They even perform at home for their parents. "They created a TV game show -- they call it "The Hot Seat" -- and put it on in their room. Carrie has come out of the closet and admitted she wants to be an actress. It doesn't disturb me. I'm having a good time, and I think it's good for kids to have a goal."

10:30

NBC Religious Special
"A Conversation With Dr. Philip A. Potter" Dr. Potter, the General Secretary of the Geneva-based World Council of Churches, discusses recent developments in the ecumencial movement with NBC News correspondent Edwin Newman.

ABC News Special
"How To Follow The Election" This show will consider elections both past and present, and will feature discussions with four young persons who attended both the 1976 Democratic Republican National conventions. It will also reveal the results of a nationwide poll in which schoolchildren predict the outcome of the 1976 Election.

NBC The Big Event
"Life Goes To The Movies" Henry Fonda, Shirley MacLaine and Liza Minnelli are the hosts for this nostalgic look at the movies. Based on the 1975 book of the same title, the three-hour special looks at the stars-from Bergman, Bogart and Brando to Temple, Tracy and Taylor-the films and the legends of three-and-a-half glamorous decades (1936-1972) in the history of motion pictures.

He walked a long time and rang many doorbells and "scared" a lot of people in order to acquire his Halloween treasures. He wants to sleep with his treasures beside him, where he can feel the sack with his hand.

These treasures somehow remind you that one of your responsibilities toward your adorable child is to teach him what real treasures are — friends, country, church, good deeds, family, love of God, and quality of spirit, to name a few.

That "Trick or Treat" bag somehow reminds you of that scripture in Matthew that goes, "Lay not up for yourselves treasures upon earth where moth and dust doth corrupt, and where thieves break through and steal: But lay up for yourselves treasures in heaven where neither moth nor rust doth corrupt, and where thieves do not break through nor steal: for where your treasure is, there will your heart be also."

You know that the church will help you in this, so you vow again to be faithful to every service, thankful for all the wonderful workers there, asking God to help you and them.

The Church is God's appointed agency in this world for spreading the knowledge of His love for man and of His demand for man to respond to that love by loving his neighbor. Without this grounding in the love of God, no government or society or way of life will long persevere and the freedoms which we hold so dear will inevitably perish. Therefore, even from a selfish point of view, one should support the Church for the sake of the welfare of himself and his family. Beyond that, however, every person should uphold and participate in the Church because it tells the truth about man's life, death and destiny; the truth which alone will set him free to live as a child of God.

Coleman Adv. Ser.

By Ralph Dixon Love

A number of persons within the Andice community met Monday night, October 25, for a called meeting at the school building to complete plans for the upcoming Andice Community 10th Arts and Crafts Country Style Fair, slated for November 13 at the school building from 9 a.m. until 6 p.m. Committees finalized their work group efforts to place this show among the most successful activities sponsored by the Andice community.

This Arts and Crafts Fair is a community participation activity that proves an attraction for persons over Central Texas to come back to the country to share in experiencing a taste of quality art, crafts and handwork creations in the natural setting of the real country-style of living which is currently in demand.

AMONG CONSIGNED displays to be seen at this Fair include oil paintings of landscapes, florals, boutiques and rustic preservation of old homesteads and homeplaces that are victim to transition of time and soon to be recalled only in memory of those persons who cared. Mrs. Jan Knox of Austin and other area artists will be offering such art media for display and sale.

Assorted handmade crochet articles of vast array of colors, and ideal for Christmas gift-giving will be offered by Miss Lela Mae Baker, Mrs. Ann Moore and other area craftsmen. Candy-filled Christmas tree ornaments and other handcrafted items will be offered by Misses Dawn and Tammy Bell and Carol Ann Moore, and others.

Helen Wade of Andice's Serendipity Boutique Shop will offer an assorted selection of her handmade quality items for every gift need. Her clothing specialty of originals for children and grownups will be offered; or a calico split-tailed bonnet can be had along with handmade men's ties by Mrs. Olga Jacob of Andice and other community seamstresses.

WHEN FOLKS COME OUT into the country in our community they come to "take dinner" with us. The community sets the little pot into the big pot and they care enough to serve the very best "Country Cookin' " they can set on the table.

Mrs. Grady Howland, Mrs. Ralph Love and Mrs. Gene Pearson will be "ramrodders" of the pots, pans and stewing kettles for this real "Country Cooking" that will be available throughout the day. This group plans a country-style menu consisting of brown beans, cornbread, onion; deluxe chicken and spaghetti that will prove country-lickin' good from the ovens of some top country cooks.

A treat and classic of foods will be the extraordinary quality chili as can only be made by the Wear family of Andice. Assorted sandwiches, homebaked loaves of bread, served with butter — hot and by the slice, or by the loaf to go — (rye, brown, white and Swedish brown). From early morning, hot coffee, homemade coffeecakes, sweetrolls and raised dough pastry will be offered by Mrs. Olga Jacob and Mrs. Emilee Love and others. An assortment of home-baked pies and cakes by a number of good cooks in our community will be available throughout the day.

All proceeds of this show will be used to continue the restoration of our school building which serves all our community and its activities.

Exhibition spaces of ample display area are still available for the Arts and Crafts Fair at $5 per exhibit. The show is being limited to approximately 30 exhibitors to allow ample show area. Anyone desiring to display is urged to contact Mrs. Helen Wade at Serendipity Boutique Shop in Andice by calling (512-783 2296.

A VERY COLORFUL hand-pieced and quilted quilt of red, white and blue, our American symbol—especially during this bicentennial year, is captivated within an eight pointed star pattern above an underlining of bright red with white stitching by the piece, revealing a touch of quality almost lost with the quilting artists of the past generation.

The community offers this handfinished queen-size bed quilt to the public in a drawing scheduled for 4 p.m. November 13.

The public is urged to come out and enjoy this community affair. Admission is free.

THE LONG LINE — A crowd of over 500 turned out for the Pancake Supper despite cold and windy conditions. They were rewarded for their trouble with stacks of piping hot, delicious pancakes and bacon, milk, and coffee. The Lions also kept steaming butter and syrup coming from the kitchen.

THC recognizes county Historical Commission

The Williamson County Historical Commission received a Distinguished Service Award at the 1976 Annual Historic Preservation Conference, held in Galveston Oct. 29 and 30.

Van C. Tipton, WCHC Chairman, accepted the award during ceremonies of the conference, which was co-sponsored by the Texas Historical Commission and Texas Historical Foundation.

The state commission administers the awards program, designed to recognize those county historical commissions who have made outstanding local contributions to preservation within the past year.

In presenting the award, THC Chairman Mrs. Wesley B. Blankenship cited the WCHC for coordinating numerous bicentennial activities and projects, such as the restoration of the late Governor Dan Moody's former home.

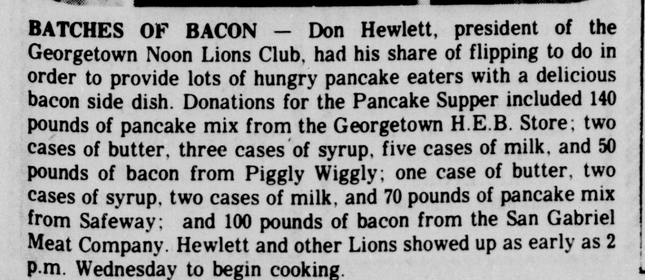
Goodies from the Lions

PICKLE PAUSES — U. S. Congressman J. J. "Jake" Pickle, representative for the district which includes Georgetown, stops to speak with one of his constituents during the Lions Pancake Supper. Pickle was present most of the night, greeting old acquaintances and making new ones.

TURN, BABY, TURN — Dr. Bob McKay has his spatula at the ready to flip those hotcakes during the Georgetown Noon Lions Club's Pancake Supper last Wednesday night. The club raised over $700 to support its sight conservation and other civic projects.



BATCHES OF BACON — Don Hewlett, president of the Georgetown Noon Lions Club, had his share of flipping to do in order to provide lots of hungry pancake eaters with a delicious bacon side dish. Donations for the Pancake Supper included 140 pounds of pancake mix from the Georgetown H.E.B. Store; two cases of butter, three cases of syrup, five cases of milk, and 50 pounds of bacon from Piggly Wiggly; one case of butter, two cases of syrup, two cases of milk, and 70 pounds of pancake mix from Safeway; and 100 pounds of bacon from the San Gabriel Meat Company. Hewlett and other Lions showed up as early as 2 p.m. Wednesday to begin cooking.

We have two new homes in Golden Oaks. These are quality homes with the fine touches for gracious living. Both are ready for your final touches and are on acreage tracts.
Bring your hammer and paintbrush and as you work, enjoy the 3 bedrooms, 2 baths, and large fenced yard. This house is priced below $17,-000.
Looking for one of Georgetown's lovely large old homes with lots of charm and lots of huge pecan trees? I have one with 4 bedrooms, 1½ baths on 2 large lots. Reasonably priced.
Veteran no down payment! Over 1400 ft. living space for $28,050. Nice area. Also, F.H.A. financing with small down payment.
This lovely place is not just a 3 bdrm., 2 bath house but a home. Its many niceties include a large detached workshop, unusually pretty redwood and stone fence, and covered patio.
Older home with 3 bedrooms, 2 baths, central heat & air. Unusual arrangement would be perfect for studio, hobby room, (or maybe a mother-in-law?).
Like rustic country living? You must see this 3 bedroom home in the country. No restrictions.

Discover 4-H

By CAROLYN BONNER & EDWARD WILKIE

ON THURSDAY, NOVEMBER 4th, DR. BILL JACKSON, Area 4-H and Youth Specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service will be in Williamson County to conduct an adult leader training workshop. This workshop will be directed toward improving the total county 4-H program by involving more parents and recruiting more minority leaders into the 4-H program.

For the 4-H program to work effectively throughout the county it is very important that each 4-H club have volunteer adult leaders to help coordinate and provide direction to the 4-H program. The 4-H clubs throughout the county are experiencing growth in membership and it becomes more and more important that we have additional adult leaders who are willing to help provide educational programs for the benefit of these youngsters. Project areas are widely varied and any adult who is interested in assisting with the 4-H program in an area of their own interest is encouraged to contact the County Extension Office, or a local 4-H club leader.

We would like to encourage all Williamson County 4-H adult leaders to be present at this meeting. It will begin at 7:30 p.m. Thursday, November 4th, in the Festive Room of the First National Bank, Georgetown. If you have any questions regarding the recruitment of adult leaders, this will be an excellent opportunity to hear Dr. Jackson speak on this topic.

Prior to this meeting we have called a meeting of the Williamson County 4-H and Youth Committee for 6:30 p.m. in the Festive Room. Dr. Jackson will speak briefly about the purpose and responsibilities of the 4-H and Youth Committee and present a slide series on this committee. Hopefully, this will enable the 4-H and Youth Committee to better keep in touch with correct youth needs and develop goals in response to these needs. All committee members are urged to attend this meeting.

LEADER TRAINING will be conducted at the Texas 4-H Center November 6 and 7. Topics will include 4-H Method Demonstrations, 4-H Shooting Sports Project, Home Environment Project, and Working with Teens.

The cost will be $14 Leader travel scholarships are available. If you are interested, call 863-2318 to make a reservation this week.

THE BI-MONTHLY MEETING of the Williamson County 4-H Adult Leaders Association will be held Monday, November 1, beginning at 7:30 p.m. at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Jack Winterrowd, Thrall (go out of Thrall on Highway 79 toward Thorndale — about two and a half miles. Turn left at two large oil tanks. Go about another mile and it is the second house on the left — new brick home.)

UCP drive begins

Residents of Georgetown and area towns will have a special opportunity to do their part in the fight against cerebral palsy — a condition caused by damage to the brain, usually at birth. During November, United Cerebral Palsy of Texas launches its campaign here, according to Doctor James L. Shepherd, County Chairman.

Approximately 40,000 cerebral palsied children and adults live in Texas and are served by programs that enable each individual to develop his capabilities to the fullest.

In addition to supporting these programs, Dr. Shepherd reported that 25 percent of funds raised during the campaign will support State and National UCP program. These include research into the causes of cerebral palsy, specialized medical training and guarding the interests of handicapped individuals in governmental programs.

United Cerebral Palsy of Texas provides supportive equipment for children and adults with cerebral palsy at no cost to their families. In addition a State Program Director is available for Parent counseling, program evaluation, establishing new programs and services and developing seminars and workshops.

Literature on cerebral palsy is available at no cost to Parents, Teachers and Students according to Dr. Shepherd.

Southwestern hosts first swimming meet

Southwestern University's first intercollegiate swimming meet will be held Wednesday afternoon, November 3, in the new Sid W. Richardson Physical Education Center's natatorium.

Entering the meet along with Southwestern will be San Antonio College and Lee College of Baytown.

Ten events will be held for both men and women, including the 200-yard medley relay at 1:30 p.m., the 200 yard freestyle at 1:45, the 50-yard freestyle at 1:55, the 200-yard individual medley at 2 p.m., and the 100-yard butterfly at 2:10.

Diving competition from the one-meter board will begin at 2:20 p.m. with contestants taking five required dives.

The final four swimming events will begin about 3 p.m. with the 100 yard freestyle, the 100-yard backstroke about 3:10, the 100 yard breatstroke at 3:20 and the 400-yard freestyle relay.

All events will be finals with two contestants entered in each event from each school.

There are grandstands for observing the pool, and spectators are welcome to the meet. Admission will be free.

Grace Episcopal sets service

Wednesday evening, November 3, the Rt. Rev. Roger H. Cilley, Suffragan Bishop of the Diocese of Texas, will be at Grace Episcopal Church for the service of Confirmation. The service will begin at 7 p.m. There will be a reception in Canterbury House honoring the Bishop and the newly confirmed persons immediately following the service.

Former JuCo mates leaders for Pirates

Part of the reason for Southwestern University's successful basketball season last year was the fact that the players were a unified, close-knit group.

The closeness of the team resulted in part from numerous players being junior college teammates before they came to Southwestern. Two players who exemplify this are Joe Buchanan and Jimmy Duffield, who played together while attending Navarro Junior College in Corsicana.

Duffield, a senior from Houston, gained All-Conference honors while instrumental in leading his team to two very successful seasons. In addition to basketball, Jimmy enjoys numerous other sports, especially football.

Joe Buchanan, Southwestern's Most Valuable Player last year, also gained All-Conference acclaim while at Navarro. The Bryan native also led his team in scoring. Buchanan was on the receiving end of many a long scoring pass from teammate Duffield last season as they continually frustrated opposing defenses.

Both Duffield and Buchanan figure prominently in Pirate plans again this year. Jimmy and Joe are both confident that their team has the tools for obtaining the Big State Conference this time around. Duffield says, "we had a good chance to win it last year. This time we won't miss the opportunity." Buchanan simply adds, "I know we can win it."

Kim Stelzer honored by Study Club

Kim Stelzer, a senior at Georgetown High School and daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Fritz Stelzer, has been selected by the Georgetown Study Club as their Guest of Honor for the month of November.

Kim has been a member of the high school band since her freshman year. During her sophomore and junior years she was in the District and Region band. Kim was a member of the F.H.A. her freshman and sophomore years. In her junior year she was elected to the National Honor Society and became a member of the Spanish Club.

Kim plans to attend Southwest Texas State University where she will major in history and minor in business.

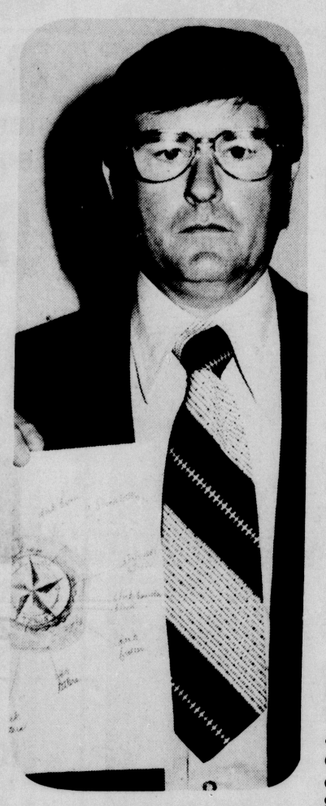
Tip-Off agenda filled

A number of special events highlight this month's agenda for the Southwestern University Tip-Off Club. The November 4 luncheon meeting, to be held in the Student Union Building, will feature Georgetown High basketball coach Dan Noll. Noll will discuss plans for the November 18 double-header game against the Rockdale Tigers. The game will precede the Southwestern - Southeastern Oklahoma game and will begin at 6:30 p.m.

The November 16 meeting will be held in the University Commons beginning at 6 p.m. Tip-Off club members and their guests will have an opportunity to meet the players and eat in a specially reserved area for a cost of $2.25 per plate. Following the dinner, a special clinic will be held in the Richardson Center, allowing fans to get a preview look at this year's Pirates, both offensively and defensively. The clinic will begin at 7 p.m.



CONSTABLE-ELECT Jerry Drummond of Round Rock displays the design he has chosen for arm patches for his uniforms and which, eventually, he hopes reserve deputy constables in the Round Rock area will be chosen to wear. County commissioners approved an expenditure request for Drummond Tuesday morning, agreeing not only to purchase a minimum 50 patches at $5.25 each, but also to provide overhead lights and a siren system for the vehicle he purchased for the job, a riot shotgun, emergency first aid kit, handcuffs and other equipment. While commissioners deleted the request that the county provide uniforms for the constable, Drummond emphasized the professional appearance they render. He — and any reserve force chosen — will provide their own uniforms.

Girl Scouts go haunting

Witches and vampires, ghosts and goblins, queens and dolls were there for the Halloween Party at Molly Burnette's house, Monday night. Girl Scout Troop 266 had all of its 24 members present for the affair, plus its two leaders, Lois Vasquez and Nelda Burson and the hostess' mother, Lynn Burnette.

The party was planned and carried out by the four patrols. The Sugar Babies, Julie Burson, Teresa Thomas, Cheryl Dedeck, Judy Shuffield, Tracy Raby and Lisa Monetti, prepared the delicious orange cupcakes, witches brew and witches hats filled with candy.

The Busy Bees Patrol was in charge of decorations. They met early at Molly's house to hang the scary creations made by the entire troop. Members of this patrol are Molly Burnette, Jan Vickers, Andrea Moreles, Karla Braun, Emily Ramos, and Tracy Davis.

Games were chosen and organized by the Honey Bees, who are Patricia Rothhammer, Vivian Vasquez, Ranae Hyatt, Margo Andrews, Tifany Parker, and Tarsia Butler. Some of the games were Sweep the Sock Relay, Witch Face, bobbing for apples, dart throwing and breaking a giant pumpkin pinata filled with candy.

The Supertroop, Rachel Bracamontez, Andrea Weisberg, Amanda Maldondo, Kim Ischy, Laurinda Acosta, and Iva Davis were responsible for planning and carrying out the costume contests. Prizes were awarded for the spookiest, the weirdest, the prettiest, the funniest, and the most unique.

Students accept Challenge

More than half the student body has responded by giving more than $800.

"Before it's over we plan to have 80 percent participation," says student leader George Young.

The Brown Challenge is a 10 year program offered by The Brown Foundation, Inc. of Houston to give Southwestern almost $11 million for the fixed endowment if Southwestern's constituency contributes about $8.4 million for operational funds.

The state's oldest university is working to raise $575,000 to meet its first year quota of that challenge this year. With two months to go, more than $300,000 has been raised.

"We want a piece of the action," says Young. "We really have more at stake in this school this year than anyone — that's why we figured we should help."

Young said that "the generous program established by The Brown Foundation not only matches our new gifts on a 2-1 basis, but will also give a $50,000 bonus to the University in honor of the classes that have more than half of its members contributing.

"Alumni, especially those from privately supported schools, need to support those schools. We want to get into the giving habit before we graduate," Young said.

San Antonio area accepts Challenge

Alumni of Southwestern University kicked off a campaign to meet the Brown Challenge in the San Antonio area this week.

Graduates of the state's oldest university met Monday evening in St. Andrew's United Methodist Church to lay plans for contacting the 450 Southwestern alumni in the San Antonio area.

The Brown Challenge is a 10-year program offered by The Brown Foundation, Inc., of Houston to give Southwestern almost $11 million for the fixed endowment if Southwestern's constituency contributes about $8.4 million for operational funds.

The university is working to raise $575,000 to meet its first year quota of that challenge this year. More than $300,000 has been raised with only two months left to raise the remaining funds for this year.

Tom Vickers, class of 1965, is the area chairman for the San Antonio challenge. Vickers and his group of workers will be focusing on meeting this year's challenge by getting contributions from as many as possible to qualify for special class goals.

A Thousand Clowns opens at Zachary Scott Theatre

The Broadway comedy hit, "A Thousand Clowns," is the new play at the Zachary Scott Theater Center in Austin. It will run from October 29 to November 20. Performances are Thursday through Sunday with an 8:15 curtain, and a special Sunday matinee at 2:15.

"A Thousand Clowns" is about an oddball TV-writer who is uninhibited, undisciplined, and. . . unemployed.

Call 476-0541 for reservations.

Mr. and Mrs. A. W. Bowen will celebrate their 50th wedding anniversary on Sunday, November 7th, with a reception from 2 until 4 p.m. at Stonehaven Center.

The event will be hosted by Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Cammack of Longview and their children Terri and Steven.

Gene Fondren speaks Tuesday at Commons

Gene Fondren, executive vice-president of the Texas Automobile Dealers Association, will speak at Southwestern University at Georgetown Tuesday, November 2.

Fondren will speak on the topic of lobbying in Washington at the noon meeting of the Political Science Society at Southwestern. The meeting will be held in the upstairs dining room of the University Commons.

Before joing the TADA, Fondren served as vice-president of the Missouri-Pacific Railroad in Texas. Earlier he was the Washington lobbyist for the Texas Railroads and he also served three terms in the House.

He also is a member of the law firm of Fox and Fondren in Taylor.

Fondren is a director of the Texas Society of Association Executives and of the Texas Good Road Association, and he is a member of the executive committee of the Texas Highway Users Conference.

Any interested person is invited to attend the meeting. Those desiring to eat at the meeting may purchase their meal in the cafeteria line in the Commons and may take their tray upstairs.

LOOK OUT MISS AMERICA — Georgetown Jr. High students staged a horror pageant October 28 in celebration of Halloween. One of the finalists for the Miss Frankenstein crown was the lovely Miss Swampland, Tammy Rydell.

Dr. Coleman gives revival in Moffatt

Dr. Adrian W. Coleman will be the evangelist for a weekend revival at the Moffatt Baptist Church at Moffatt, Texas on November 6 and 7.

Dr. Coleman is Vice President for Advancement at Mary Hardin-Baylor College. He pastored churches in Lampasas and Georgetown in this area and served several years as missionary to Liberia.

Halloween spooks and goblins come in all shapes and sizes.

STANDING TALL — Leslie Austin atop Cindy Howry led the Georgetown High School student body and local citizens in rousing cheers Thursday afternoon in an allout effort to "Spook Westlake."

Faculty additions aid GISD

The Georgetown Independent School District is fighting to keep classroom student loads down to 25 per teacher, and addition of two new instructors to the district's faculty will aid in that effort, School Supt. Jack Frost said last week.

Four new teachers were hired at the school board's last regular meeting, including Jean Holden, Pat Crowley, Judith McCain and Kay Nell Harris. Mrs. McCain and Mrs. Harris are teaching at the Georgetown Primary and Westside Intermediate Schools, respectively, and helping to keep the pupil to teacher ratio close to 25.

"We keep a close count on our daily attendance, and our school board is striving to keep class loads down," said Frost. "We feel this is conducive to a better learning situation, because once you get past 25 it becomes a burden on the teacher. Ours is a good stable growth so far, but it has caused us to have to increase our faculty."

Frost pointed out that the total is expected to go over 3,700 within ten years.

SBA Seminar for small businesses in Austin Nov. 9

The Small Business Administration is sponsoring a free Small Business Seminar. The subject matter will be "Financial Management" for the Small Business."

The seminar is designed to give a down-to-earth, basic fundamental understanding of what financial management is all about and how it affects the day-to-day operation of a business. The seminar will also be helpful for those wishing to start a business.

The seminar is scheduled for Tuesday, November 9, 1976, 4:00 to 9:00 p.m., at the Austin Public Library, Oak Springs Branch, 3101 Oak Springs Drive (Off Airport Boulevard), Austin, Texas.

Advance reservations are necessary and can be made by calling the Austin SCORE Office between 10:00 a.m. and 2:00 p.m., Monday through Friday, at 297-5111, or notifying the Small Business Administration at 727 E. Durango, San Antonio, Texas 78206, telephone number (A C 512) 229-6285.

UW tally day party planned

"You're invited," said Linda Graves, United Way Drive Chairman for the Georgetown campaign announced.

What are you invited to?

It's the fund's final tally day celebration at 12:30 p.m. this Friday, which UW directors will celebrate in front of the thermometer that has faithfully gauged the upward climb of local contributions as workers strive to meet the $19,650 goal.

AT LAST TALLY, 95 percent of the goal — $18,787 — had been pledged.

Will the drive reach 100 percent by November 5?

In case of inclement weather, the celebration will be held in the Festival Room of the First National Bank.

Huffmaster performs at Houston luncheon

Drusilla Huffmaster, artist-in-residence and associate professor of piano in the School of Fine Arts at Southwestern University, will perform works of Chopin, Barber, Lucas and Griffes for the Junior League Friday Musicale of Houston at a luncheon program on November 5 at the Junior League Building in Houston.

The program is a bicentennial tribute to the late Miss Ima Hogg, philanthropist and patroness of the arts.

Miss Huffmaster will be playing Chopin's "Four Mazurkas, Op. 30" (C Minor, B Minor, D Flat Major, C Sharp Minor), Barber's "Excursion, No. 2," Griffes' "Scherzo," and "Sonette" (Third Movement, "Lively") by Dr. Theodore Lucas, Dean of the School of Fine Arts at Southwestern University.

Dividing her time between performing and teaching, Miss Huffmaster has achieved an enviable reputation in both fields. Her engagements have included concerts in music centers in Europe and in numerous states in this country. Among the orchestras Miss Huffmaster has appeared with as soloist are the National Symphony and the National-Gallery Orchestra of Washington, D.C., the Chautauqua Symphony (New York), Dallas, San Antonio, Austin, Houston — re-engaged 13 times to appear with this brilliant orchestra), Lake Charles, La., and Juilliard orchestras.

Annual engagements for Miss Huffmaster have included the Junior League Friday Musicales in Houston and as regular guest artist with the Houston Music Guild. Miss Huffmaster is listed among the recording artists of the Piano guild Library.

Many honors and awards have come to Drusilla Huffmaster. She is the recipient of the Matrix Award in fine arts given by the Houston professional chapter of Women in Communication, national fraternity for women in journalism, for her "outstanding contribution in the field of music." She is also the recipient of the "Star of Delta Omicron," an award given by Delta Omicron, international professional music fraternity, for "outstanding achievements in the field of music and for her interest in the contribution to service, betterment, and ultimate welfare of women in music."

Allied van proposes winter move incentives

Allied Van Lines, Inc., has filed a proposed new schedule of reduced seasonal rates with the Household Goods Carriers' Bureau, according to MacLeod Smith, Sales Manager of Scobey Moving & Storage Company, an Allied agent in Austin, Texas.

The action will provide the moving consumer with an eight percent reduction in current rates from November through May 15, 1977 — a traditionally slow moving season for household goods carriers.

Mr. Smith explained: "The proposed new schedule of seasonally reduced rates is one of the most innovative steps ever taken by a household goods carrier to reduce the summer peak moving season for household goods carriers.

Under the proposed new rate structure families moving interstate during the 'off season' would not only benefit from the eight percent reduction, but would receive more personalized, efficient service due to increased, more productive operational and man power capabilities.

Mr. Smith added that the rates for summer moves — May through October — would be increased by eight percent above current levels as an incentive for consumers to move during the 'off season' months, thereby equalizing the country's present relocation patterns. Historically, 60 percent of the household goods movers' business occurs during the hectic summer months and dramatically tapers during the 'off season'.

Proposed cotton board assessment hike explained at Taylor meeting

The vital need for cotton producers to maintain and build momentum for their fiber in the marketplace through increased research and promotion was stressed at a meeting in Taylor on Thursday.

Presiding was Kenneth Johnson, Hutto producer. He explained the meeting was one of a series being arranged by the National Cotton Council to discuss cotton's research and promotion needs and opportunities and a proposal to meet those needs.

DETAILS of the proposal were explained by Producer L. C. Unfred of Tahoka, who was lead-off speaker.

"Under the proposal, producer assessment for research and promotion would be increased by four-tenths of one per cent of the gross sales price of each bale of cotton, beginning with the 1977 crop," he stated. "This would be in addition to the current $1 per bale."

He added that after 1977 the supplemental assessment could be increased in increments up to one per cent on the recommendation of the Cotton Board and the Secretary of Agriculture.

"THE COTTON BOARD has made it very plain, however, that this would be done only after an in-depth study showed conclusively that the program was being conducted with maximum effectiveness, that its effectiveness could be increased only with additional financing, and that producers themselves indicated an overwhelming sentiment for an increase," Unfred stated.

He further explained that all other aspects of the program remain virtually unchanged, including the right for any producer to obtain a refund.

The speaker stated that testimony at recent U.S. Department of Agriculture hearings across the Cotton Belt indicated strong producer support for the proposal.

HE ADDED that the enabling legislation calls for a referendum in which producers would vote on increasing the assessment.

He explained that in 1975 producers of synthetic fibers spent $230 million in fiber research compared with $5.4 million by growers through Cotton Incorporated (CI). The odds in fiber advertising ran $60 million versus $3.4 million for cotton.

Pointing out that inflation has hurt cotton's research and promotion effort, he said the $1 per bale approved by growers in the 1966 referendum will buy only 60 cents worth of these tools today. In addition, supplemental government funds now have been eliminated.

CITED AS areas where "we can expect to get more for our money" were the following:

- Increased textile research in durable press, fire retardance, and knits;
- Agricultural research in specific problem areas, such as byssinosis and pest management;
- Stepped-up fabric development and fashion support to keep mills thinking about cotton and higher cotton blends;
- Much heavier merchandising and advertising support to increase consumer demand; and
- More work in the international field to increase exports.

IT WAS EMPHASIZED that in most areas additional funds will go directly into programs since CI already has an efficient and professional staff in place.

Cited as a prime example of progress was research leading to a more efficient system of seed cotton processing and handling. It was reported that the system saved producers $7 million in 1974 and that the saving could exceed $10 million during the 1976 harvest season.

ANOTHER EXAMPLE cited was the producer-financed effort to increase the percentage of cotton — and thus its market share — in broadcloth, oxford, and other lightweight fabrics.

CI staff members reported that as a result of these efforts, six mills and converters now are producing "Natural Blend" shirting fabrics. Thirteen prominent shirt brands are using the fabric, which must contain at least 60 per cent cotton. The next step is to change blend levels in additional volume markets.

The staff explained that success in this project was achieved through a total marketing approach — fabric development, mill contacts, fashion design, merchandising and advertising.

THE NATURAL BLEND— Buck Telander of Hutto, (left), and Leon Schrank of Georgetown examine the "Natural Blend" permanent press shirt that offers consumers more cotton comfort. Now being marketed by 13 leading firms, the shirt was developed by Cotton Incorporated with grower dollar-a-bale funds. The shirts contain at least 60 per cent cotton instead of the 35 per cent they did a year or so ago. This development, the growers point out, is building markets and profits for growers and giving consumers a better product.

St. Louis encephalitis (or SLE), often referred to as "sleeping sickness," is causing concern and fear among Texans.

SLE is caused by a virus carried by certain species of mosquitoes. Illness in humans is the result of the SLE virus invading the tissues of the brain and other parts of the central nervous system.

Symptoms range from a mild reaction involving a few days of fever and headaches to more grave reactions characterized by chills, nausea and vomiting, high fever, severe headaches, confusion, drowsiness, convulsions, and, in some cases, death.

According to Dr. Jim Olson, medical entomologist with the Texas Agricultural Experiment Station, small birds, such as sparrows, are the natural host and source of SLE virus. Mosquitoes pick up the virus by feeding on the blood of infected birds. Man becomes involved in the cycle when infected mosquitoes, seeking additional meals, feed on humans, transmitting the virus to them.

The mosquito species most frequently involved in human outbreaks of SLE in Texas and other parts of the southern U. S. is Culex quinque-fasciatus, or the "southern house mosquito."

Olson says that at present, no vaccine has been developed that will protect humans from SLE. Control of SLE outbreaks hinges, almost entirely, on the rapid suppression of infected adult mosquito populations in the vicinity of human populations. This is usually accomplished with low volume applications of insecticides from aircraft and ground vehicles.

★ County swine flu clinics

low in Bell County, he could requisition some of the vaccine from the larger county for use here in Williamson.

In addition to the nurses and lay volunteers, doctors from the Georgetown Medical and Surgical Hospital have volunteered to be present not only at the Georgetown clinic but at other clinics if they are needed elsewhere in the county. While doctors at the Taylor hospital will not be present at the clinic there, they will be on call.

Myers explained that the doctors will not be giving shots — "unless they just want to" — but will be available to answer questions and in case of any emergency which might arise.

HE STRESSED his own "reassurance that there's nothing in the vaccine which can harm you, with the admonition that there are certain groups of people who should not take it anyway: those who are allergic to eggs or people who are running fever at the time of the clinic or who have colds.

Myers warned that all persons eligible to receive the bivalent serum would be required to present their physician's statement that they are 65 or older, or that they suffer from one of the following chronic illnesses: chronic broncho-pulmonary disease, such as asthma or cystic fibrosis; heart disease; chronic neuromuscular disorders; chronic renal diseases; diabetes and other chronic metabolic disorders; malignancies and immunodeficiency states.

Persons who have fever should delay receiving the immunization and persons who have received another type of vaccine within 14 days should consult a physician before taking the flu vaccine.

No private physicians in Williamson County are administering the vaccine, although nursing homes in the county have received their quota of the bivalent vaccine and will have their house doctors authorize the shots there, Myers said.

CHILDREN UNDER 18 will not be given the shots unless they are chronically ill. Children between the ages of 3 and 17 who have a physician's signed statement that they are chronically ill can receive the immunization at any of the mass survey clinics or later from their family physician.

Reports indicate that dosage amounts for children are still being tested by the federal government, and may be released at a later date for administration locally.

While most types of influenza virus affect the elderly and the chronically ill, Myers explained that the swine flu attacks primarily the young, healthy adult between the ages of approximately 20 and 45.

"This is the thing that was so devastating about the 1918 episode: so many of the young people died."

Because of this, Myers urges every eligible adult in Williamson County to receive the shot.

Also, this is the reason the bivalent vaccine will be administered to the elderly.

In addition to the swine flu inoculation, the bivalent serum contains the killed virus of the flu which made the rounds last year — one of the more usual types which more often affects the elderly or chronically ill.

TEXAS GOVERNOR Dolph Briscoe recently designated the months of October, November and December as "Influenza Immunization Months" in Texas and urged all Texans to avail themselves of the free protection from the flu.

"Public health authorities have stated that the potentially lethal 'swine' influenza virus could strike the American population this winter," Briscoe stated in urging Texans to take the shots. "The members of Congress have declared that a potential public health emergency exists; and taxpayers' monies have been appropriated for the development and distribution of an effective vaccine against 'swine' influenza."

Can you spare a home? Foster parents needed

"Excuse me, but can you spare a home?"

This is the question that is being asked by numerous children in Central Texas who are in need of a foster home. The Texas Department of Public Welfare is looking for people in this area who are interested in the foster care program and who could perhaps help a child during a troubled period in his or her life. More foster homes are needed.

EVERY WEEK five to ten children are being left homeless as a result of the family breaking apart. The causes for these breakups may be alcoholism; emotional or physical illness; abuse, neglect, or abandonment of the child by the natural parents. It is at this time, when the child needs to be removed from his home for his own safety and well-being, that foster parents come in.

What is foster care and what kind of people become foster parents? Foster care is a protective service which provides a child with a temporary family during a planned period while his parents are unable to take care of him. All kinds of people become foster parents: young, old, and of all ethnic backgrounds. Their main concern is for those children who are going through a difficult time in their lives and who feel that these children should have all the basic rights that every child deserves.

Qualifications for being a foster parent are simple: foster parents must be able to love and give to the child, and yet be able to see him move on when the time comes to go back home or to go into adoption. They must be able to try to understand and accept behavior problems related to the child's background of insecurity, rejection, different standards or lack of standards for behavior in the child's earlier home. The foster parents should be able to treat the foster child as one of the family, while he is there. The more active the foster family is, the better it is for the child. The family must be able to share their skills, talents, and recreational interests with the child to strengthen feelings of self-worth and self-confidence through stimulation of the child's creative interests.

FOSTER PARENTS must be certified and the social study includes application, references, about three interviews, medical statements, and having home inspections. The length of time involved in the study varies from one to two months.

The Department provides a reimbursement fee for the child's expenses, and most medical costs are taken care of.

If you feel that you can provide some love and warmth to a troubled child; if you feel that you can share your home and some proper guidance temporarily to a child in need, call the nearest Department of Public Welfare's Foster Home Development Office. The offices are: Austin, (512) 475-5657; Taylor, (512) 352-3611; or Lockhart, (512) 398-5271. You can also write to the Austin office for materials to be mailed to you. The address is: Department of Public Welfare, Foster Home Development Unit, 3000 S. Interregional, Austin, Texas 78704.

Robert will Chair county UCP drive

Ms J. W. Roberts will serve as Residential Chairperson for the United Cerebral Palsy of Texas annual campaign for funds which will be held here during the month of November.

Ms Roberts said the campaign will involve residents, business and industry, professional and community organizations, along with house-to-house solicitations in support of the UCP agency's programs of service for children and adults with cerebral palsy and their families.

United Cerebral Palsy of Texas purchases wheelchairs, braces, corrective shoes, counseling, information and referral, and a summer camping experience to cerebral palsied children and adults at no cost to their families. 70% of all funds collected throughout Texas are directed toward cerebral palsied children and adults in the state.

Damage to the brain associated with birth is the primary cause of cerebral palsy, Ms Roberts said. Persons with this condition may be unable to hear, speak or walk without braces or crutches, confined to wheelchairs or unable to move about at all. If diagnosed early in life, however, cerebral palsy can yield to therapy.

"We believe all persons with cerebral palsy can be helped," Ms Roberts said. "Whether they are young children, teenagers or adults, United Cerebral Palsy of Texas is here to see that they have an opportunity for habilitation, education, employment, recreation, or just to enjoy life to the fullest extent possible."

Ms Roberts as Chairman will oversee the recruitment of volunteers and the general organization of the fund drive. She called on all residents of Georgetown and surrounding towns to telephone her at 863-2997.

MY FRIEND JACK — Gerald Peyton, manager of Georgetown's Piggly Wiggly Store, displays his Halloween jack-o'-lantern creation, complete with ears. A past master at pumpkin paring, Peyton also rigs a "talking pumpkin" in the window of his home on Halloween nights with a tape recorder. Sheriff nets 250 pounds of weed after mysterious drop

The Williamson County Sheriff's Office on Friday afternoon reported recovery of 250 pounds of marijuana from the western part of the county, after an apparent air-drop of 500 pounds of the drug there sometime early last week.

ANOTHER 100 POUNDS of the substance was discovered in eastern Burnet County. Total estimated wholesale value of the find was placed at $54,000 - $60,000 ($90-$100 per pound). Total retail, or "street", value was estimated at $96,000 ($10 per ounce).

The substance was found in twelve 50-pound bales strung along a 3½-4 mile line running west-northwest to south-southeast between Burnet and Georgetown.

Deputies theorized the bales were dropped from a low-flying airplane sometime Monday night, probably because the occupants of the plane wanted to lighten its load or because they feared discovery of the cargo. They said one bale narrowly missed hitting a house in the area.

THE DEPUTIES also theorized the plane was flying inbound from some point in Mexico because the substance was wrapped in what they described as Mexican paper."

Deputy Jim Boutwell said the Sheriff's Office began recovery operations Wednesday morning after Liberty Hill Constable Lee Hays reported discovery of the bales. Boutwell said the original discovery was made by a western Williamson County rancher, who then reported it to Hays.

According to the Sheriff's Office, the substance was found as tightly-compressed bricks wrapped in paper and then bound with twine into 50-pound bales covered with a plastic-type material and burlap.

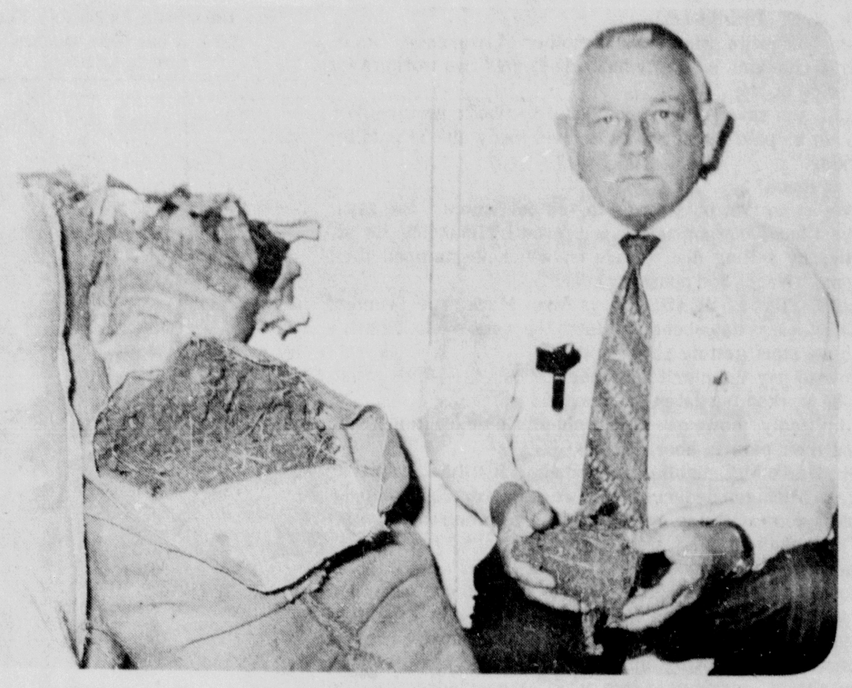
Boutwell said he, Sheriff August H. Bosshard, and deputy Leon Kelley recovered four bales of the load Wednesday, including one load Wednesday morning and another Wednesday night.

THE REST of the line of bales, he added, was discovered from the air Thursday morning, hidden in an area of the western county not readily accessible by vehicle.

Bosshard and his deputies reported recovery of another bale Friday morning. They hoped to retrieve the rest of the load before dark Friday.

The recovery effort was coordinated with similar efforts by the Burnet County Sheriff's Office and the Narcotics Division of the Texas Department of Public Safety (DPS).

The Sheriff's Office said the recovered substance would be turned over to DPS labs.



FROM OUT OF THE BLUE — Williamson County Sheriff August H. Bosshard holds a handful of the 250 pounds of suspected marijuana recovered from western Williamson County during the latter part of the week. The substance was found in twelve 50-pound bales apparently air-dropped along a line running between Burnet and Georgetown. Bosshard and two deputies recovered four bales last Wednesday morning and one Friday morning. The rest was located in an area inaccessible by vehicle, so the Sheriff's Department hoped to airlift it out with a helicopter before nightfall Friday. The Sheriff's Office said one of the bales narrowly missed hitting a house when it was dropped.

By Don Scarbrough

No question at all about any of the races except the big one. Right now it seems that the scales are tipped toward Jimmy Carter. This could change by Tuesday.

—0—

A LARGE NUMBER of SUNDAY SUNS go into Congressman W. R. Poage's district, which includes Round Rock and the east half of Williamson County. "Mr. Bob" is one of the greatest, a public servant of the highest order, deserving of our support for as long as he wants to serve.

—0—

For those who didn't receive the Thursday SUN, we suggested — yea, urged — everyone to scratch the name of Don Yarbrough, discredited Democratic nominee for State Supreme Court, and write in the name Sam Houston, who is a fine man serving as District Judge in Denton. We endorsed all the other Democratic candidates except Jimmy Carter. We listed the SUN as still undecided on that top contest. With two days to go, I am leaning toward the peanut farmer.

—0—

Frankly, I haven't run across many people around here who aren't openly for President Ford. My farm friends tell me that they, also, feel he has helped them, so the outcome of the vote in this county, which is historically Democratic, could be in doubt right through the counting.

GEORGETOWN BUSINESS people are now searching for a Chamber of Commerce manager to succeed Gene Martinka, who resigned several weeks ago. A number of applicants have been interviewed but no decisions have been forthcoming. A viable Chamber of Commerce is most important to the business community and we all hope this vacancy can be quickly and effectively filled. An enterprising manager would be especially useful during the Christmas season, which is right upon us.

County swine flu clinics scheduled November 6, 7

Limited supply available but flu season is now

With only 5,600 doses of the monovalent swine flu vaccine on hand and promise of another 5,000 doses soon — and the flu season arriving with cold rain this week — Williamson County Health Director Dr. Donald Myers has given the go-ahead sign for organization of flu clinics in the county.

Shots both for persons 18 to 64 and for those 65 and over or who have chronic illnesses will be administered in Georgetown at the courthouse from 9 a.m. until 5 p.m. Saturday, November 6, and between noon and 4 p.m. Sunday, November 7. The south entranceway with the ramp will be used for the elderly.

Although Myers had hoped to receive enough vaccine for the county's approximately 40,000 residents before beginning any clinics, he had expected the vaccine early in October.

Because only small deliveries have been made on separate occasions, with no assurance of when how much more vaccine will arrive, Myers initiated the program without enough serum to inoculate everyone in the county.

Whether or not more clinics will be scheduled later depends upon the availability of the vaccine.

THE INJECTIONS will be made on a first-come, first-serve basis until the vaccine runs out. Although clinics had initially been scheduled for two successive weekends, that plan changed with the decision to start inoculations with the small amount of vaccine on hand.

Currently, the clinics are scheduled to be held only on November 6 and 7.

Five nurses from the health unit will be working during the weekend so that one will be available at each clinic. In addition to the Georgetown clinics, swine flu shots will be given at central locations in Leander, Round Rock and Taylor.

A fifth clinic will be held all day Saturday in Granger and Sunday afternoon in Jarrell.

Volunteers are also being accepted to help with the paperwork required.

Each person taking the shot must read and sign a form stating that they have had the opportunity to ask questions about the shots and that they understand the benefits and risks of taking the inoculation.

"If the people would read this beforehand it would save time in registering," Donna Barksdale of Georgetown, volunteer coordinator for the clinics, noted. The registration form is reproduced on page 4 of this issue of the Sunday SUN.

Both Myers and Diane Sansom, who is cordinating the clinic workers, pointed out that it is the paperwork which is the most time-consuming segment of the clinic.

Cards detailing the lot number of each batch of serum used must also be filled out for each person to keep as a record of the immunization.

Also health director of Bell County, Myers pointed out that the shot clinics were held in small communities in that county last weekend, with a poor turnout.

He tagged the cold, wet weather and little advance notice that the clinics would be held as two reasons for the poor showing.

CALLING THE RESPONSE "pretty disappointing," Myers said, "We were prepared for about 10,000 people and we got 1,273 — about 10 percent of what we expected. We are going to go this weekend in Temple, Belton and Killeen, and we hope this weekend's turnout will be better."

The health administrator also pointed out that, to judge by the number of calls the health center in Georgetown has received from persons anxious to receive the inoculation, Williamson County residents seem more concerned about getting the shots.

While Williamson has only about one-fourth the amount of vaccine which would be required if every citizen requested the free immunization, Myers agreed that, if demand remains

CARTERESQUE, Georgetown Mayor John Doerfler receives one of the first swine flu shots administered in Georgetown. County health officials have scheduled five immunization clinics for the general public next weekend, November 6 and 7, in six Williamson County towns despite the fact that the full shipment of vaccine has not yet been received. All shots will be given on a first-come, first-serve basis between 9 a.m. and 5 p.m. Saturday, November 6, and between noon and 4 p.m. Sunday, November 7, until supplies are exhausted. Dr. Donald Myers, director of the health unit located in Georgetown, explained that the inoculations would begin before all vaccine has been delivered because of the rapid approach of the flu season.

Voter interest in Tuesday's presidential election is increasing as the final hours produce frenzied efforts from both camps, the Harris poll said Thursday. Now a larger than expected turnout of votes is expected and, surprisingly, the expert observers say this will help Ford. Dick Cervenka, Williamson County County Clerk, appears to be expecting a sizeable vote. Four years ago there were about 400 absentee votes cast prior to the election; this year the total had risen to 584 by Thursday morning.

Chicago area housewives are "getting organized."

They don't call their organization a "union"; they call it "The Chicago Wages for Housework Committee." They are passing out leaflets on weekends around shopping centers explaining their purpose and recruiting members.

ALREADY SIMILAR GROUPS of housewives are "getting organized" in Brooklyn and in Los Angeles.

Indeed, anything less must certainly be discriminatory.

Yet if either political party were to campaign for "wages for everyone who works," such a promise most certainly would have to include "working housewives."

And with government paying such generous wages and retirement benefits to men and women working in government jobs. . .

And with government making such generous payments and benefits available to people who do not work at all. . .

It is she who chairs the Chicago area "Wages for Housework Committee."

This housewife, married and mother of two, says, "As is, when a company hires my husband it gets two workers for the price of one.

"No," she says, "this is not just a symbolic gesture. We want to be paid for our work as everybody else is paid for working."

How much?

"We've not yet put a price tag on our labors," she says.

The Chicago organization is presently financing its activities by selling dish towels on which is stamped their slogan: "Wages for housework."

"ALL THESE YEARS," says Mrs. Mack, "government and businesses have benefited from the work we do. Now it's time we start getting paid for it."

How to pay them and how much? That, the ladies insist, can be worked out later.

Admittedly, however, the problems of execution could cause their plan to abort.

Dr. Doris McLaughlin of the Labor Institute at Wayne State in Michigan deduces that if working women have to depend on domestic employees to tend the homefront, a working man without a housewife would certainly have to pay somebody to tend her chores.

How come she is expected to work with no compensation beyond food, shelter and clothing?

A RECENT STUDY analyzing the hours and duties of housewives — cooking, mending, cleaning, chauffeuring, baby sitting, nursing, and so forth — concluded that the average housewife's labors in today's marketplace should earn about $30,000 a year.

I understand the writers of All in The Family will be using that figure and the "Wages for Housework Committee" as the focus for an episode this season. One can imagine Archie Bunker's reaction when Edith joins up.

For longer terms

Our legislators and top administrative people ought to be spending more time at their jobs and less time campaigning. True enough, but not quite possible.

With legislative elections every two years, the State Representative or the U. S. Congressman is in a bind. He has to make a choice — either attend to his job and face defeat or neglect his job and spend a lot of time visiting with his constituents.

WE HAVE ALWAYS RESISTED four year terms for legislators but gradually in recent years we have moved to the other view. We believe the electorate would benefit by the longer terms.

A governor ought to be elected to a single, four year term. In the past we nearly always gave a capable governor a second term as governor, a total of 4 years. Again, during those first two years he was spending a lot more time running for reelection than he was attending to the State's business. Now he can be reelected for a second four year stint and that's too long in most instances. We are for a single 4 year term for governor.

THE PRESIDENTIAL TERM ought to be six years and removal from office for both the president and the governor should be a somewhat simpler task than what it is now. Now they have to be proven crooks to be removed. In England, for instance, the Prime Minister and his entire government can be brought down by a single no confidence vote. That might be too easy over here.

In the campaign just ending we have seen the encumbent president doing the same as all of his predecessors have done — use the Oval office and all the majestic power of the presidency to win reelection. This is wrong. A single term presidency would end it.

Too, presidential candidates shouldn't have to spend a lot of money to win reelection. Television, a federal gift to station owners, ought to be available for an ample amount of free time (the same should apply to radio stations) to each of the candidates and all this needless, costly and dangerous flying back and forth across the country to get media exposure should end. Candidates should be able to seek and win office without powerful financial backing. There aren't many newspapers that would be seriously hurt if they received no political advertising from the gubernatorial or presidential parties. Less than 1 percent of the SUN's total revenues during this election year is from political advertising. Nation-wide, we calculate, over $100 million is being spent to put a man in the White House.

Our point, more simply, is that our governors and our presidents ought to be in position to quit campaigning and go to work when they are elected. Our legislators and our congressman should be responsible to the people in their own districts but not to the point of having to shirk their duty in Austin and in Washington, as many now must.

What to vote for, or against

The American presidential campaign of 1976 is nearly over. It has been marked (1) by the absence of humor (intentional variety), (2) by a regrettable although not unusual indulgence by both sides in slurs, innuendos, misrepresentations, evasions, calumny, and empty promises — and (3) by avoidance by both candidates of serious discussion of the major problems which lie ahead for the American people.

The third point — the avoidance of discussion of the major problems ahead — seems to me to be of first importance to those voters who are still wondering whether to bother to vote at all, or if they do then for which major candidate.

First, let's look at the real problems which can rear up at any moment to confront the next president of the United States.

In foreign policy it is conceivable that the Soviet Union will take military action against China. Perhaps the threat of such action is more plausible than its actual use. But it might happen. And the use, or even the threat of the use, of Soviet military power against China would be deeply disturbing to the whole world.

Indeed, there is nothing which could be more disturbing than such a threat by Moscow since the world today is built around the fact of Moscow's noncontrol over China. The world was dangerously out of balance when Moscow could control China as well as the entire Soviet Union with its Eastern European satellite empire. It has been balanced comfortably for the rest of us from the moment Moscow lost its control over China. An attempt to regain that control by force would threaten everyone else in the world.

Suppose that should happen. How would either Mr. Ford or Mr. Carter handle the problem? Nothing said in the campaign bears on this matter.

Almost equally dangerous would be a military move by Soviet armed forces against Yugoslavia when Marshal Tito is no longer present to keep his conglomerate country together. This is a major concern in every foreign office in Europe. Nothing said in the campaign throws any light on how either Mr. Ford or Mr. Carter would meet that problem.

In the American economy the next president will certainly have to make important decisions affecting the health and the strength of the American economy. Both candidates have indulged in platitudes on the subjects of inflation and unemployment. Mr. Ford has accused Mr. Carter of spendthrift inclinations. Mr. Carter has accused Mr. Ford of callousness toward the workingman. But such charges throw no real light on how either man would meet a serious economic crisis should it emerge.

Perhaps even more important to the future of the American people and of the world at large will be the methods employed to handle the problem of energy. Ever since the oil embargo of 1974 governments have talked about the problem of energy. But what in fact would either Mr. Ford or Mr. Carter do to prepare American industry and the American citizen in his little automobile for the day when oil runs low and natural gas is gone? The subject has scarcely been mentioned in the campaign and yet it may be the single most difficult problem for the next generation.

Neither you nor I can go to the polls and vote for the way one man or the other can be expected to handle any one of these problems of the future. The candidates have not discussed them for the simple reason that the answers to these problems are uncertain. Neither major candidate can know what answer he will attempt to apply to these problems. Neither man has had time to study them or become familiar with the details of the problems or to have mastered the range of possible solutions.

So how do we choose between the candidates?

We have to make the choice on an individual measure of each man. We have to try to decide which will approach any one of these problems in the most wise and prudent manner. Which will choose the better advisers? Which will listen most thoughtfully? Which will think most objectively? Which, once a choice between solutions has been made, will be the firmest in pressing ahead with what is deemed to be the necessary action?

The candidates have exposed themselves in all their imperfections before us. We are remarkably well informed about their faults. These have been mentioned often enough in this newspaper and others. But both men also have some sturdy qualities. Both are good men as goodness is usually measured. Both have survived a grueling campaign in good health and spirits. Both are sturdy enough and thick-skinned enough to stand the heat of high public life.

If the quality of true greatness is in either man, it does not yet show itself. Crisis might bring it out in either, or both. But both are manly enough and able enough and politically skillful enough to have survived the ordeal of the campaign. Both have run the gauntlet. Both are still standing.

Which would be the better man for the job? You must make your own individual choice. But be comfortable as you approach your choice in the knowledge that the American Republic has survived the leadership of several presidents less competent, less sturdy, and less intelligent than either Mr. Ford or Mr. Carter.

The choice is more than just between a Southerner from the Naval Academy and a football player from Michigan. But the difference is not enough to make or break the United States.

Tippy-toe finish?

Awards supper honors local conservationists

Two Georgetown men will be honored during the sixth annual District Awards Supper by the Little River-San Gabriel Soil and Water Conservation District on November 9 at 6 p.m. in the Bartlett Town Hall.

Retired District Judge D. B. Wood will receive an award for Wildlife Conservation; Harlan "Bud" Lee will be honored as the Outstanding Conservation Rancher of the County. Both Judge Wood and Lee have ranches on Highway 29, west of Georgetown.

JUDGE WOOD is credited with making the initial effort that brought the great deer population to west Williamson County.

In 1939, when there were no deer in the county, Judge Wood petitioned and obtained 20 pet fawn from the Texas Game Department, as it was then known.

From this stock, it is said, the thousands of deer in west Williamson County were produced.

Lee has a fine ranch that he and his wife have operated for the past 12 or 15 years. His award at the Bartlett banquet will be in recognition of his outstanding conservation program.

SPEAKER for the occasion will be Johnny Watkins of KWTX-TV and radio of Waco.

"Watkins, who is also a popular farm auctioneer, has for years amused and informed farmers with his popular noon TV program, Ten Acres," said Gilbert E. Kretzschmar of Bartlett, chairman of the LRSG Board of Directors.

Recognize spoiled foods

Prevent foodborne illness. Throw out food of "questionable safety," Frances Reasonover, a foods and nutrition specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, advises.

"Homemakers can be alert to possible spoiled foods by learning some signs of spoilage in canned vegetables, meats, fish and poultry." Some of these signs are swelled top of jar or can, dents along seams of cans, foam, milky juice, leaks, strange odor.

She cautioned that all spoilage does not have an "off" odor. Home-canned foods should be cooked for 10 to 20 minutes for added safety. Do not taste before cooking.

Letters to the Editor

A persistent theme of the Republican presidential campaign has been to blame "big spending" and "big taxing" on the Democratic Congress. To hear the Republicans tell it, in fact, everything bad that has happened in this country since Gerald Ford became president has been solely the fault of the Democratic Congress!

The FACTS, however, fail to fit the Republican rhetoric.

The truth is that the annual Federal deficit reflected by the presidential budget requests during the 8 years under Presidents Kennedy and Johnson averaged 1.6 billion dollars. In the 8 years immediately following, under Presidents Nixon and Ford, the presidential deficit averaged 14.3 billion dollars. For fiscal year 1976, President Ford's budget requests reflected a deficit of 51.9 billion dollars! Now ask yourself, "Which party's presidents have actually been the big spenders?"

The overpowering reason, of course, for the vastly increased Federal deficits under Nixon and Ford has been the unconscionably high level of unemployment which Republican presidents are willing not only to tolerate, but actually to encourage as an "answer" to inflation.

For every 1% of Americans who are unemployed, it is estimated that the cost to the Federal government is 16 billion dollars — 13 billion in lost tax revenue and 2 billion in unemployment compensation, social services and welfare.

Under Gerald Ford, unemployment has soared to nearly 8%, one of the highest levels in 30 years. Yet, Gerald Ford has consistently vetoed bills passed by the Democratic Congress which would have provided jobs, many in the private sector, for millions of Americans, thereby reducing the heavy drain that high unemployment puts on the Federal budget.

As to which party wants to increase taxes, once again let's look at the RECORD, not the rhetoric.

It was the Democratic Congress that passed the 22.8 billion dollar tax cut. And it was the Democratic Congress that voted in 1975 to extend that 22.8 billion dollar tax cut — only to have the extension vetoed by President Ford, in spite of the fact that he had formally called for it.

The Democratic Congress, determined that the American public would continue to have this tax relief they so deserved and needed, was finally able to satisfy President Ford by adding some extraneous, cosmetic language he demanded, and he reluctantly signed it into law.

This Democratic tax cut includes personal exemptions particularly important to low and middle income families and extends business investment tax cuts and small business investment tax credits, among other areas of needed tax relief.

Does this sound as if the Democrats want to raise our taxes? Of course not! Democrats want — and will attempt to have, under President Jimmy Carter — a healthy economic climate and a balanced Federal budget which puts its spending priorities on people programs designed to improve the quality of life for ALL Americans, and not just the privileged few.

REMEMBERING...

By BILL BROOKS

SCARECROWS

The Brooks kids had a garden one year. Dad said it was high time we learned what it was like to raise a crop of our own. He marked off one corner of a field near our house and gave us the responsibility of choosing what to plant and taking care of it.

We planted seeds and most of them came up. We watered and hoed and eagerly watched the plants as they bloomed and put forth their fruit. We especially watched the watermelons because that was our favorite thing to eat. Each vine had several nice ones and we could hardly wait until they would be ripe enough to pick.

One day as we were inspecting our crops we were dismayed to find that several melons had jagged holes in them. Sitting nonchalantly on the fence nearby was a couple of crows with rounded stomachs full of melon.

"A scarecrow will solve this problem." We took some boards and made a kind of cross. Using gunny sacks we made a body. My sister's knowledge of sewing came in handy for that. We slipped the body over the cross and stuffed it full of wheat straw. It looked really good, almost like a person except with no clothes. It needed a pair of overalls and a shirt we figured, along with a hat and some gloves. Mother said some of Dad's old worn out work clothes would be just fine so we had everything we needed.

We got him dressed and took him to the garden where we dug a hole to stand him up in. He looked good standing there guarding our melons but my sister said he wasn't quite finished. She ran to the house and came back with a face she made from white cloth and crayons. She stitched in it place on the burlap head and I had to admit it was just what he needed.

He wasn't very effective at doing his job however, because crows sometimes came to roost on his arms and hat. I think they would land there to choose which melons they wanted. But whether he really scared them or not didn't matter because there were plenty of melons for us and some to share.

Liberty Hill NEWS

BY HOWARD N. WILSON

We Americans will have an opportunity next Tuesday to vote for the candidate of our choice for President of our Nation. This is, as we should all be aware, a privilege which many people in the world do not have. We should appreciate how valuable our vote is and not fail to go to the polls to exercise our right to make this choice.

There are over 6,000,000 registered voters in Texas, according to a recent report. We should all do our part to disprove the fear of apathy which has been too often the rule in our Nation. LET'S ALL VOTE!

On Sunday, October 31, The First Baptist Church of Liberty Hill will begin a week-long revival with Bro. Tommy Burress doing the preaching. Wendell McLeod will lead the singing, accompanied at the piano by Jeanette Whitehead with Shirl Holder at the organ. On Sunday there will be a morning service at eleven o'clock, and the services will begin at seven-thirty each evening.

The youth of The First Baptist Church will sponsor a "Tacky Party" this Sunday evening after the church services. There will be games for everyone, and refreshments will be served. ALL of the young people in and around the area are invited to come and participate in this party. Come early for the evening service and stay for the party. We feel sure that eveyone will benefit by attending these revival services!

Caucus holds seminar on rape prevention

The Women's Political Caucus is sponsoring a program on rape prevention on Tuesday, November 9, from 7:30 to 9 p.m. in the Georgetown High School theater.

Attacks on women are a local problem, not just a big city problem. Four rapes were reported in Georgetown last year.

This rape seminar is being offered to educate the public. It will cover realities of the problem, preventive behaviors, and attitudes and services which might be helpful to victims of sexual assault.

The agenda for the program includes a 20 minute film entitled, "Rape—a Preventive Inquiry." Following the film, Arlene Lyons, Director of the Rape Crisis Center in Austin, will give a brief talk. A representative of the Austin Police Department will also make a presentation which will be followed by a question and answer period.

Books on rape will be on display and pamphlets will be available. Mature individuals who are interested in being trained to assist rape victims in our community may volunteer at the conference.

St. Peter's Lutheran Church holds annual chili supper

The congregation of St. Peter's Lutheran Church of Walburg will be having a chili supper on November 16. Serving will start at 5:00 p.m.

Chili, stew, and pies will be sold "to go," but you must bring your own container.

There will also be a "Country Store" selling plants and homemade bread, pickles, jellies, pies, cakes and quilts.

Girl Scouts calendars for sale

The 1977 Girl Scout Calendar goes on sale Friday, November 5 at 4:00 p.m.

The 1977 calendar, A Portrait of Scouting, shows what Scouting's all about. There are 12 large candid photos of Scouts and a new date pad with jotting space.

This year the selling price in Lone Star Council's 18-county area will be 75¢, including sales tax. Troop profit will be 12¢ per calendar and Brownies as well as Juniors, Cadettes and Seniors may sell.

Your neighborhood Girl Scout Troop has 1977 calendars on sale now. Support the Girl Scouts in our community and buy a calendar with space on which to write. Buy a 1977 Girl Scout Calendar when a Girl Scout calls on you, now through December 5.

Child Welfare meeting slated

Members of the Williamson County Child Welfare Board are expected to consider Christmas gifts for foster children as a major business item during their meeting at 1:30 p.m. Tuesday in the county health building conference room.

Board members, who approve such expenditures in the county as Aid For Dependent Children and special needs, will also discuss new appointments to the group.

Baptist enjoy fellowship & fish

South Jonestown Baptist Adult I Sunday School Class members and their families met Thursday evening, October 21, in the fellowship hall of the church for a fish-fry and evening of fellowship.

Thirty-nine persons attended the gathering.

EVERY CITIZEN — even the mayor — who receives the free swine flu shot has to read and sign a registration form stating that he understands the benefits and risks of flu vaccination. After the shot has been given, he will receive a small card printed in light blue to keep as a record of the shot. Diane Sansom of Georgetown (right) will be holding volunteer training session for persons interested in helping with the paperwork involved in the weekend clinics.

Mrs. Etta H. Dees of Florence was re-elected Secretary of the Region XIII Education Service Center by the Center Board of Directors.

Mrs. Phoebe Perkins has returned from Phoenix, Arizona where she visited her son, Laguay Fergess and family.

(Monovalent)

INTRODUCTION

You probably have heard a good deal about swine flu and swine flu vaccine. You may know, for example, that swine flu caused an outbreak of several hundred cases at Ft. Dix, New Jersey, early in 1976—and that before then swine flu had not caused outbreaks among people since the 1920's.

With the vast majority of Americans being susceptible to swine flu, it is possible that there could be an epidemic this winter. No one can say for sure. However, if an epidemic were to break out, millions of people could get sick. Therefore, a special swine flu vaccine has been prepared and tested which should protect most people who receive it.

Certain people, such as those with chronic medical problems and the elderly, need annual protection against flu. Therefore, besides protection against swine flu, they also need protection against another type of flu (Victoria flu) that was around last winter and could occur again this winter. A separate vaccine has been prepared to give them protection against both types of flu.

These vaccines have been field tested and shown to produce very few side effects. Some people who received the vaccine had fever and soreness during the first day or two after vaccination. These tests and past experience with other flu vaccines indicate that anything more severe than this would be highly unlikely.

Many people ask questions about flu vaccination during pregnancy. An advisory committee of the Public Health Service examined this question and reported that "there are no data specifically to contraindicate vaccination with the available killed virus vaccine in pregnancy. Women who are pregnant should be considered as having essentially the same balance of benefits and risks regarding influenza vaccination and influenza as the general population."

As indicated, some individuals will develop fever and soreness after vaccination. If you have more severe symptoms or if you have fever which lasts longer than a couple of days after vaccination, please consult your doctor or a health worker wherever you receive medical care.

While there is no reason to expect more serious reactions to this flu vaccination, persons who believe that they have been injured by this vaccination may have a claim. The Congress recently passed a law providing that such claims, with certain exceptions, may be filed only against the United States Government. Information regarding the filing of claims may be obtained by writing to the U.S. Public Health Service Claims Office, Parklawn Building, 5600 Fishers Lane, Rockville, Maryland 20852.

Below is more information about flu and flu vaccine. Please take the time to read it carefully. You will be asked to sign this form indicating that you understand this information and that you consent to vaccination.

The Disease. Influenza (flu) is caused by viruses. When people get flu they may have fever, chills, headache, dry cough or muscle aches. Illness may last several days or a week or more, and complete recovery is usual. However, complications may lead to pneumonia or death in some people. For the elderly and people with diabetes or heart, lung, or kidney diseases, flu may be especially serious.

It is unlikely that you have adequate natural protection against swine flu, since it has not caused widespread human outbreaks in 45 years.

The Vaccine. The vaccine will not give you flu because it is made from killed viruses. Today's flu vaccines cause fewer side effects than those used in the past. In contrast with some other vaccines, flu vaccine can be taken safely during pregnancy.

One shot will protect most people from swine flu during the next flu season; however, either a second shot or a different dosage may be required for persons under age 25. If you are under 25 and a notice regarding such information is not attached, this information will be provided to you wherever you receive the vaccine.

Possible Vaccine Side Effects. Most people will have no side effects from the vaccine. However, tenderness at the site of the shot may occur and last for several days. Some people will also have fever, chills, headache, or muscle aches within the first 48 hours.

Special Precautions. As with any vaccine or drug, the possibility of severe or potentially fatal reactions exists. However, flu vaccine has rarely been associated with severe or fatal reactions. In some instances people receiving vaccine have had allergic reactions. You should note very carefully the following precautions:

- Children under a certain age should not routinely receive flu vaccine. Please ask about age limitations if this information is not attached.
- People with known allergy to eggs should receive the vaccine only under special medical supervision.
- People with fever should delay getting vaccinated until the fever is gone.
- People who have received another type of vaccine in the past 14 days should consult a physician before taking the flu vaccine.

If you have any questions about flu or flu vaccine, please ask.

County residents now have access to cancer information

A new "weapon" against cancer is now available in Williamson County to provide the public with current, factual information on cancer, its prevention and early detection.

Called the Cancer Information Service, the new program utilizes a toll-free phone line (1-800-392-2040) to answer public inquiries on cancer. The service will be extended to all residents of Texas by late this year.

The CIS is part of a public educational effort sponsored by The University of Texas M. D. Anderson Hospital and Tumor Institute with assistance from the American Red Cross, American Cancer Society and many other health agencies in Texas which provide services to cancer patients and their families.

Funded by the National Cancer Institute, the CIS functions as part of a nation-wide network.

The phone lines are open from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. on weekdays and operated by trained American Red Cross volunteers. All background material used to answer questions is reviewed by physicians to insure accuracy.

The program is designed to help create a positive sense of awareness about cancer that will encourage the public to seek physician evaluation for early detection and prompt treatment of suspected cancers.

In addition to answering questions on the telephone, the CIS staff will mail pamphlets published by health organizations, professional societies and government agencies involved in health education to interested persons.

I THINK SMALL BUSINESS SHOULD HAVE A BIGGER VOICE IN OUR GOVERNMENT.

"You know better than anybody what the Ford Administration has done for small businesses in this country. Absolutely nothing! There's been no consistent policy, no direction, no leadership. Nothing but neglect and loan cutbacks. Nothing but a shrinking share of our nation's manufacturing and profits. Nothing but 30,000 bankruptcies last year alone. It's disgusting when you have to work night and day just to survive, while the White House rubs shoulders with special interests on the golf course. As President, I'm going to change that. Because I believe the heart and soul of our free enterprise system rests with you. And I intend to see that you get your fair share of its rewards."

GOVERNMENT REORGANIZATION: "Right now there are at least nine agencies and departments directly responsible for assisting small business. In actual fact, their authority has become so diluted that not one of them is truly accountable. I am going to reorganize the federal bureaucracy. From top to bottom. I did it in Georgia and I can do it on the federal level. We need a government that's efficient, competent, honest and open again. We need to develop programs and policies that are fair and equal to small business again."

SMALL BUSINESS PARITY: "You've been harrassed and restricted through excessive guidelines, through executive orders and regulatory edicts. As President, I don't want a bigger voice in small business. I want small business to have a bigger voice in government. I want to see strong small business programs. I want to see new businesses, new jobs, new products, new markets. I want to see America on the move again."

CAPITAL SHORTAGES: "I will work to strengthen government financing programs, to guarantee small business viable sources of equity and financing on a parity with big business."

INTEREST RATES: "As President, my economic policy will be to stimulate growth. There's absolutely no reason why we can't maintain an adequate capital supply for small businessmen and women at reasonable interest rates."

INNOVATION: "There's no excuse for the growing number of foreign companies marketing their technology in the U.S. Not when we're capable ourselves. We need to implement programs to encourage small business in technological innovation. There's so much that needs to be done. In developing energy, in environmental protection, in transportation, in construction and communication."

FEDERAL PROCUREMENT: "I'm tired, just like you, of Republican lip service to small business. It's time for work, not talk, to make sure you as a small businessman receive your fair share of the federal procurement dollar."

REGULATORY POLICIES: "We need to reform our federal regulatory agencies, their reporting requirements and their tax laws. We need to get the government off of our backs for a change."

ANTITRUST AND DIVESTITURE: "We need tough enforcement of our antitrust laws. And strong protection from price discrimination. We need to share the goal of maintaining our system of free enterprise and its returns. I think the government should work with you, not scorn you."

TAX REFORM: "Our tax laws are a national disgrace. As President, I will work with you and Congress to take the burden off the small businessman and wage earner. I am not going to head an administration that kowtows to the interests and pressures of powerful lobbyist groups. I want an America where everybody puts up their fair share."

IF YOU'RE TIRED OF A GOVERNMENT WHICH OPERATES BEHIND CLOSED DOORS, FROM WEAKNESS RATHER THAN STRENGTH. IF YOU WANT A VOICE IN THE WAY OUR COUNTRY IS RUN, IN THE WAY YOUR BUSINESS IS RUN. YOU HAVE ONLY ONE CHOICE ON NOVEMBER 2ND. AND THAT CHOICE IS CLEAR.

VOTE FOR JIMMY CARTER.

Charlotte Hardi presents senior piano recital

Charlotte Hardi, pianist, will be presented in recital on Thursday, November 4, at 8 p.m. in the Recital Hall in the Alma Thomas Fine Arts Center at Southwestern University.

Assisting Miss Hardi in her senior recital will be Sonja Brown, pianist.

Misses Hardi and Brown will be performing Bach's Choral Prelude, "In Thee Is Gladness" and "Sheep May Safely Graze" and Poulenc's "Sonate" (prelude, rustique and final). Miss Hardi will play Brahms' "Rhapsody, Op. 79, No. 2" and Kennan's "Three Preludes" (allegro scherzando, lento and allegro con fuoco).

Charlotte Hardi, a candidate for graduation in the spring from the School of Fine Arts at Southwestern University, is majoring in music education with piano as an area of concentration. A frequent performer on the university campus and in the area, Miss Hardi has been presented in recitals as soloist and accompanist for other musicians. She is studying piano with Mrs. Jane Lansford of the music faculty in the School of Fine Arts.

Memberships for Miss Hardi include Alpha Chi, Alpha Delta Pi and Delta Omicron, serving as secretary for Delta Nu chapter of the international professional music fraternity. In addition to her academic work, Miss Hardi also serves as organist for the First United Methodist Church in Taylor. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Otis Hardi of Coupland.

Sonja Brown, also a candidate for graduation in the spring at Southwestern University, is majoring in music education with piano, organ and clarinet as areas of concentration. In addition to performing as soloist and accompanist, Miss Brown is a member of the University Chorale and Southwestern Singers. She has served on the Student Judiciary and as vice-president of Panhellenic. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Roger C. Brown of Dayton.

A reception will honor the recitalists in the Gallery of the Alma Thomas Fine Arts Center immediately following the program.

4-H shorts

The Georgetown 4-H Club Livestock Group elected its 1976-77 officers during a meeting in the Livestock Building at Georgetown's San Gabriel Park on October 25.

Also that night, an officers group from the Jonah 4-H Club attended a County Officers Training Workshop at Hutto High School.

Group leaders for the Livestock Group will be: Eddie Rogers — swine; Dan Richter—sheep; Tom Davenport—poultry; and Fred C. Smith—beef.

Members present at the Livestock Group's meeting were John Wakefield, Karen Smith, Kim Richter, Tracy Hunt, Maury Cairnes, Regina Rodgers, Kendall Stone, Elizabeth Burgeson, Lisa Wakefield, Vicki Leschber, Paul Pausewang, Glenn Peschel, and Janet Wenzel.

The group's next meeting will be held in the Livestock Building at 1:30 p.m. Saturday, November 6.

The Officers' Training Workshop consisted of informal work groups where parliamentary procedures and the duties of each office were stressed.

Girls report to Opti Mrs.

Barbara Berkman received a certificate from Mrs. Oscar Bengston of the Round Rock American Legion Women's Auxiliary on behalf of Bluebonnet Girls' State. Barbara was the recipient of the Opti Mrs. award to represent Georgetown at this ten-day study of Texas government. She attended the Monday club meeting with her mother, Mrs. Leroy Berkman, to report on her activities during those ten days.

Louise Wilcox, the member representative from Opti Mrs. who worked with Barbara on Girls' State, also received an award from Mrs. Bengston.

Each year 2 Girl Scouts are sponsored by the club to attend a 2 week session at Tex Lake Girl Scout Camp. Melissa Douglas and Susan Andrews, the girls sponsored this year, came to the meeting to tell those present what they did and what they learned there. The 2 girls were accompanied by Mrs. Hershel Sheperd, Neighborhood Chairperson for Georgetown Girl Scouts.

Opti Mrs. hold fund-raiser

The Georgetown Opti Mrs. annual dinner and auction will be held at 7 p.m., November 4, at the San Gabriel Recreation Center.

This fund-raising auction is the event that finances the club's civic projects. Members are encouraged to invite guests.

There will be handmade items, homecanned goods, baked goods, plants, hanging baskets and many surprises.

MOD spooks

As ghosts leave their resting places and the mist rises from the deep, shrieks pierce the stillness of the night from the "House of the Witches' Moon". The March of Dimes "House of the Witches' Moon" haunted house is the place where the screams are produced. Open from 7 to 12 p.m. through Halloween night, the ghosts and goblins are dressed in their scary best and ready to make visitors scream in delightful horror.

Visitors should enter from the North parking lot of Northcross Mall. There, for a fee of $2 for adults and $1 for children under 18, all comers will be treated to the sights and sounds of ghoulish fantasy.

Proceeds from ticket sales will benefit the Capital Area Chapter of the March of Dimes.

Local AAUW plans blood drive

The Bloodmobile Unit of the Travis County Medical Society will be stationed at the Georgetown Community Center on Wednesday, December 1, from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. Anyone between 18 and 66 years of age and in good health may give blood.

In the last few years Georgetown people have experienced shortages in many of the things we consider necessities of life. Blood is a necessity of life, however. It is one of the things we really cannot do without and in cases of emergency it is often only available through a blood bank.

Last year the Georgetown Medical and Surgical Hospital used 150 units of blood. Most of this 150 units came from the Travis County Medical Society Blood Bank, a non-profit community supported service. They provide whole blood and blood components to 22 hospitals in Austin and surrounding communities. Blood is accepted only from volunteer donors and it is tested for antibodies and the presence of hepatitis before it is released.

In order to build up a blood bank and make blood available in case of emergencies, a blood drive is being conducted in the Georgetown area and West Williamson County to secure donors. This drive is sponsored by the Georgetown Branch of the American Association of University Women with the cooperation of the service clubs, churches, schools, sororities and local and area businesses.

Local citizens wishing to give blood between the hours of 9 a.m. and 5 p.m. should come to the Community Center (no appointment necessary). Persons unable to come during these hours may call Mrs. R. M. Medley at 863-2736 to sign up for appointments after 5 p.m.

Florence council postpones meet

The regular Florence City Council meeting will not be held November 2, the first Tuesday of the month, due to the presidential election.

Councilmen will meet in the Florence City Hall November 9 at 7 p.m. instead.

Miss Dina Rose, Miss Florence Bicentennial, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ed Rose, represented the Florence Chamber of Commerce at the State Fair in Dallas. Itinerary for the queens included a soft drink party, presentation at the Cotton Bowl Show and a reception. At this affair each queen received a bracelet and charm of the 1976 fair theme from Wayne Gallagher, executive vice president and general manager of the State Fair.

Miss Rose is a graduate of Florence High School and a student at Southwest Texas State University at San Marcos.

Mr. and Mrs. Clytus Caskey were in Austin to visit Foy Caskey at the hospital.

Mrs. G. N. Townsend and Chester Townsend were shopping in Georgetown Tuesday.

Guests in the home of Mr. and Mrs. A. F. Gray were Mr. and Mrs. Joe Taylor of Mesquite, Joe Frank Taylor and Miss Brady Bardemann of Austin, and Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Haskins of Killeen.

Methodists plan barbecue

The Homebuilders Class of St. John's Methodist Church is having a barbecue, November 14, from 12 to 2 p.m. The feast will be spread in the church fellowship hall at 311 East University Avenue in Georgetown.

Tickets are $2.50 and plates are available to take out or eat at the church. Proceeds will go to the "Lord's Acre" project.

HOPE YOU'RE HUNGRY — Mr. and Mrs. Nick Onjanow and Mr. and Mrs. Bob Phelan holding a poster for the St. Elias Lebanese food festival, November 7. Ya'll come.

St. Elias holds 36th annual Lebanese Food Festival

Mr. and Mrs. Nick Onjanow and Mr. and Mrs. Bob Phelan wish to invite all their friends in Georgetown to attend the 36th annual Lebanese Food Festival, November 7 at St. Elias Orthodox Church, 408 East Eleventh Street in Austin.

The celebration will begin at 11:30 a.m. and end at 7:30 p.m., featuring a traditional Lebanese dinner and Lebanese, Greek and Russian pastries.

The depression of the 1930's spurred the women of the church to begin these food fairs. To raise money to build THE church building, they baked bread and pastries which they sold to their neighbors. The building was completed in 1934, largely due to the efforts of these church women.

St. Elias is Austin's only Eastern Orthodox parish, serving Orthodox Christians of all national origins.

Tickets for the event may be purchased at the door, or reservations may be made by calling Mrs. Sam Attal at 472-0208, or Mrs. Joe Zebug at 478-4834. For food to take home, call 476-2314 any time during the day November 7.

Kennard speaks to Taylor Club on Wednesday

Claude Kennard, art historian in the School of Fine Arts at Southwestern University, will give an illustrated talk entitled "Roses of Yesterday and Today" for members of the Taylor Study Club on Wednesday, November 3, at 10 a.m. in the home of Mrs. Franklin Schlesinger, 1218 West Seventh Street in Taylor.

A coffee at 9 a.m. will honor the guest speaker and members of the club. Ms. Janice Kollman is program chairman.

Kennard is a frequent speaker for cultural, educational and civic organizations. A graduate of the University of Texas at Austin with a bachelor of arts and master of arts degrees, Kennard has done further graduate study at the University of Texas. An avid traveller, Kennard has visited various sections of the world.

Prior to joining the art faculty in the School of Fine Arts at Southwestern University in 1965 as art historian and director of the Gallery in the Alma Thomas Fine Arts Center, Kennard, associate professor, was lecturer in art at the University of Texas at Austin. He has also served as guest lecturer at Instituto Allende, San Mighel de Allende (State of Guanajuato), Mexico, and director of the Beaumont Museum of Fine Arts in Beaumont.

St. Edward's hosts youth

Teenagers from St. Helen's Church experienced a day of recollection and fun at St. Edwards' University in Austin on October 24. The youth belonging to St. Helen's Serendipity CCD for high school students and St. Helen's high school CYO.

The program began at 1 p.m. with films, skits and singing. The theme for the day was "God's Gifts to Us." The days activities dealt with how we return these gifts to Him through our own lives.

A Mass was conducted at 5 p.m. with folk singing and music. Dinner followed at 6 p.m. and a dance at 7:30 p.m. with live music played by "The Sunshine Ally Band" rounded out the events of the day.

St. Helen's sent 23 students and 5 adults. They joined a group of 300 other youth at St. Edward's for the study and fun-filled afternoon.

Tuesday, the day of the electorate

Locally, the first commissioner's race challenged by an area Republican; nationally, the contest for a national Chief of State: the voters' decision in Tuesday balloting will determine the shape of things to come to Georgetown during the next four years.

The November 2 general election this Tuesday will be held in Williamson County at 22 different polling places, from 7 a.m. until 7 p.m.

The county's 26,177 voters are urged to bring their voter registration cards to the polls in order to facilitate the procedure, when they vote.

While persons who are registered on the poll list but who have not brought their cards will be allowed to vote, they must sign a series of affadavits attesting to the loss of the cards, a time-consuming procedure for clerks working at the election.

In addition to deciding the Precinct 1 county commissioner race — which Democrat Carl Lidell and Republican Jimmy Coffman, both of Georgetown are seeking, voters will choose a slate of local, county, district, state and national officials to serve during the next four years.

Not only Democrat Jimmy Carter with running mate Walter Mondale and the Republican President Gerald R. Ford with his vice-presidential choice, Robert Dole, but American Party candidates Thomas J. Anderson and running-mate Rufus Shackelford; Socialist Workers Party nominee Peter Camejo with vice-presidential hopeful Willie Mae Reid; and independent Eugene J. McCarthy lead the list as presidential candidates.

In Williamson County, incumbent Precinct 3 Constable Lee Hays faces write in candidate James M. Burnett, also of Liberty Hill. Burnett, a recently-announced candidate, did not compete in either spring primary when Hays was unopposed.

All running on the Democratic ticket, the candidates are all incumbents with the exception of Drummond. After winning his campaign against two other Democrats during the May primary, Drummond will fill the position vacated by Constable Johnnie Roepke. Roepke was defeated in the sheriff's contest during the May primary.

WILLIAMSON COUNTY'S slate of unopposed officers includes County Attorney-elect Billy Ray Stubblefield as well as incumbent Sheriff August Bosshard and Tax Assessor William Buck.

Two newcomers to politics are entered on the Democratic side of the ballot for positions in the district court.

In selecting state officials, voters are being asked to consider not only Democratic nominee Don Yarbrough for Supreme Court Association Justice, but write-in challengers Sam Houston and Tom Lorance.

The office of Railroad Commissioner remained very contested after primary season ended, as the Democrats fielded Jon Newton, and with Walter Wendlandt as the Republican nominee, Fred Rodriguez Garza representing the Raza Unida party and Pat O'Reilly as the candidate presented by the Socialist Workers party.

WHETHER YOU LIVE in Congressional District 10 (western Williamson County) or 11 (the eastern section), the incumbent U. S. Representative has a Republican challenger.

For Georgetown — as well as persons whose registration cards show they live in Election Precinct 3, 4, 6, 9, 10, 11, 12, or 30 — the challenge is between Democrat J. J. (Jake) Pickle and Republican Paul McClure.

It's Republican Jack Burgess challenging Democrat W. R. (Bob) Poage in the eastern end of the county. Precints 5, 13, 15, 20, 21, 23, 25, 27, 28, 33 and 34.

Not only Republican Alan Steelman but American Party candidate Marjorie P. Gallion and Pedro Vasquez of the Socialist Workers Party are challenging Democratic incumbent Lloyd Bentsen for his position as U. S. Senator.

Little spending seen in local campaigning

It ended with the large lists of primary candidates racing for the same office this spring, when $65,768 was spent winning the two primaries locally.

While a record nine candidates — including, for the first time in county history, two Republican contenders — waged a $9,339 battle for the position of Precinct 1 County Commissioner, only a little over $100 more has been expended.

CANDIDATES in contested races are required to report all campaign contributions and expenditures at specified intervals before and after each election.

Altogether, as of seven days before the election, Lidell had spent $1,482.83 to win the Democratic nomination over six other contenders. The spending included the expenses of a runoff contest with R. J. Woytek.

Coffman, who took the Republican nomination over contender Carroll Smyers of Round Rock, reported spending $607.39 between the February filing date and October 26.

To date, Lidell has reported $734 in contributions to Coffman's $50.

ALSO CONTESTED LOCALLY is the constable's seat for Precinct 3.

While incumbent Lee Hays of Liberty Hill was unopposed during primary balloting last spring, write-in challenger James M. Burnett, also of Liberty Hill, has since declared his candidacy.

Burnett reported contributions of $32.50 and $98.17 in expenditures prior to the election.

Hays reported no contributions but expenditures of $168.30, including the $150 filing fee paid the Democratic Party before the February filing deadline.

Hill welcomed in timely arrival

"Attorney General Hill just called his regrets — he won't be able to be here," Bill Stubblefield, Carter-Mondale co-chairman in Williamson County began, but quickly interrupted himself.

"That's him — he's here!"

The cancellation wasn't for Georgetown, and 30 county Democrats were treated to an after-breakfast campaign boost for Jimmy Carter from the Texas official.

Expressing confidence in Carter's concern for Texas, the Attorney General told the group, "I like him — he's our kind of folks."

Recently selected the attorney general on Washington Monthly magazine's all-star state government team, Hill also encouraged the Democrats to continue their campaign efforts for Carter unflaggingly.

"I want you to work hard these last days. I know that people do want a change; they want to turn out the Watergate crowd; they want to start this country fresh again."

Citing the Democratic presidential nominee as "the man who really has the savvy and knowledge in this energy thing," Hill praised Carter as the man most able to work out "a positive program in this very, very critical field."

He also listed Carter's ability to solve the nation's energy problem without harming the environment, as well as his sensitivity to such human concerns as education and health, as pluses for the candidate.

QUERIED by Art Johnston of Georgetown about Mrs. Lyndon Johnson's support of Carter, Hill pointed out that Mrs. Johnson has publicly stated she will support the candidate.

Although Hill will escort Carter on a weekend trip from McAllen to San Antonio and the Dallas-Fort Worth area, he explained that because the schedule did not include an Austin stopover, "It is unlikely for the two of them to get together.

"Jimmy Carter's unfortunate statement that President Johnson was a mistake and politically did not make any sense. I am sure he regrets it.

"It was made after the interview with Playboy was entirely over but the tape was still rolling. He said Nixon and Johnson were lying and cheating about Viet Nam. Whether he really meant that, or associated all presidents with that war, I don't know.

"But Lady Bird is one of the greatest women that God ever made and it is typical of her that she very graciously accepted his apology."

"IF YOU WILL read the whole Playboy interview, if you liked Jimmy Carter before, you will like him more; if you didn't like him you will learn to like him.

"It's hard for me to believe that anyone is going to vote on just one statement. She's said she's going to support the ticket and she's said she's going to support Governor Carter."

They're driving Georgetown to vote

Supporting President Gerald Ford's campaign effort 100 percent, members of the Republican Women's Club of Williamson County have planned a telephone canvass of Georgetown as well as an election day shuttle service to the polls to encourage Georgetownites to vote.

"We are not trying to take any information about how people are voting. It's strictly to encourage people to vote no matter what, because Texas is going to be such a close state," said Jane Holder, president of the Republican Women's Club. "I think the main issue is we don't want to give up a two-party state."

"And we hope to have some kind of Ford demonstation outside each of the polling places in Georgetown — outside the line, of course," added club member I. J. Wilkerson, who joined the group after her August move to Georgetown from Alaska. "Southwestern University is completely organized. There are Students for Steelman and Students for Ford totally organized to help."

The telephone canvass is being conducted by Georgetown women who voted in the Republican primary, calling their friends to urge them to vote. "We will take any volunteers at anytime; anyone who wants Ford in office is welcome to come help," said Mrs. Holder.

She also predicted a good voter turnout Tuesday saying, "I think we will have more people vote than you think."

While Mrs. Wilkerson has set up a Neighborhood Headquarters station for Ford in her home at 2402 Gabriel View, Ford Headquarters for the women's group is at 707 Rock.

American Legion Auxiliar

THE LAST SLIDE — Don Cemper, supervising renovation of the Administration Building at Southwestern University, takes the last trip down the old fire escape slide on the historic building. Hundreds of students through the decades have shrugged off dire warnings and disciplinary action for a thrilling slide, sometimes on wax paper, on the three-story apparatus. But now the old escape route is down to make room for safer facilities.

STEPS UP AND AWAY — A crane removes the fire escape from the east side of the building. The $1.2 million renovation of the building is more than half complete and slightly ahead of schedule.

FOOTBALL CONTEST
PICK THE WINNERS AND WIN A PRIZE

Here's How You Play:

HERE WE GO AGAIN! It's football time -- and time for the annual County SUN Football Contest. If you're a Saturday morning armchair quarterback, you can enter this fun Contest and check up on yourself! Might even win a little money at it or a free theater ticket.

Here's a game to test your skill -- it's a game that the whole family can enjoy. Spread this page out on the kitchen table. Let everybody play. There'll be a new contest each week until about the middle of November.
So ready, get set, GO!

- Win $10, $5 or $3 for first, second or third respectively
- Next five winners may pick up a free ticket to the Palace Theater!
- Pick up all prizes and theater tickets at The SUN.
- The only notification of the winners will be in the following week's issue.
- See this week's football games on this page.
- In each game, check the team you think will win. (You do NOT need to indicate score).
- Unless all games are marked, your entry will be automatically disqualified.
- Then to eliminate as nearly as possible any ties in this fun-test, every entry must have the score marked on "The Tie Breaker" game listed at right.
- Only one entry per person will be qualified, but as many from a family may enter as wish to do so -- except employees and families of the Williamson County SUN.
- You may enter the fun-test on this page. Or you may copy the games on another sheet of paper, indicating your pick in each game.
- All entries must be brought to The SUN by 5:00 p.m. Friday or mailed with a postmark not later than 7:00 p.m. Friday of each week. The SUN will grade all entries, and The SUN's decision will be Final and incontestable.
- Have FUN! And patronize the businesses whc make this fun-test possible.

KEVIN TIGHE, as paramedic DeSoto, finds it hard to get away from his new friend, a so-called ferocious dog that turns out to be just a big fellow who is overly playful on Emergency!, Nov. 6 (8-9 p.m., ET) over NBC.

TV Dialogue

KIN FOLK -- Please tell me where I can write to Blythe Danner. My maiden name is Danner. Both my parents are deceased and I know very little about my father's family. I am wondering if we could be related as both Blythe Danner and my father are from Pennsylvania. Betsy Durrenberger, Wykoff, New Jersey.

Since Danner is not currently under contract, your best bet would be to write her in care of The Screen Actors Guild and ask them to forward it. The address is: 7750 West Sunset Boulevard, Los Angeles, Calif. Good luck.

* * *

DIGS DARREN -- For years now I have been a fan of James Darren. One thing I've noticed is that he never seems to get much older looking. How old is he anyway? Also, could you tell me what his real name is? Mary Ann Convoy, Lebanon, Pa.

You may not be able to tell it by his looks, but your hero is 40 years old. His real name is James Ercolani, befitting an Italian kid from Philadelphia.

* * *

BYE BYE BRIDES -- Do you know if the television series Here Comes the Brides is going to be put on again? J. Yancey, Elon College, N.C.

Once a show on television is cancelled, that's it. Here Comes the Brides is, however, being sold nationally in syndication. Check with your local TV station to see if they have plans of picking up reruns of the series. If not, you'll have to convince them to do so.

* * *

SON OF COMIC -- Is Michael Lembeck, who plays Clete on Mary Hartman, Mary Hartman, by any chance related to Harvey Lembeck, who used to be on Phil Silver's Bilco show? Murray Eisman, Waterbury, Conn.

* * *

CHASING CHASE -- Where can I write to Chevy Chase of Saturday Night? Sue Ann Phillips, Biwabik, Minn.

Since Saturday Night originates in New York, you can write to him at NBC's office there -- NBC, Rockefeller Plaza, New York, N.Y. 10019.

* * *

BRACE YOURSELF -- Why don't they put braces on Melissa Gilbert's (of Little House on the Prairie) teeth? It would be a shame to let them go uncorrected. P.R., Milton, W. Va.

By DAN LEWIS

Susan Clark portrayed Babe Didriksen Zaharias and she learned how to play golf. Then she portrayed Amelia Earhart, and so she learned how to fly a single-engine plane.

Now she's been asked to do another film biography for television, this time the famous French fashion designer Coco Channel, but Clark is neither interested in learning how to make like a fashion designer nor play another famous lady.

So she turned down that last offer.

So, Amelia Earhart will be it for the time being.

"Amelia Earhart," in its TV version, was not a political vehicle. It was, in a sense, the story of an air-struck young lady whose infatuation with flying catapulted her into international fame, honored by heads of state, idolized by Americans.

Her death has remained a controversy. The rumors persist to this day that when her plane disappeared in 1938, it was all part of a plan calculated by President Roosevelt and the U.S. defense forces to take reconnaisance photos over Japanese-held islands in the Pacific.

A film made years ago, starring Roz Russell, suggested that the ingenious scheme was for Miss Earhart's plane to run out of fuel, so she could ditch in the ocean. In sending out rescue planes, which would in reality be reconnaisance aircraft, they could photograph the military strength of the Japanese.

"This alleged ploy was never proved," Clark maintains. "Roosevelt spent $4 million in four days searching for her plane. There is no mention (of such a plan) in the Roosevelt papers."

Clark doubts the Roosevelt collusion story.

Shirley MacLaine has been attempting to produce a film on Amelia Earhart for several years now. The NBC version has won the race, but it does leave room for MacLaine's story since her script accepts the Roosevelt theory.

SUSAN CLARK: no more superwomen roles.

"Scripts get around," she says coyly. "Shirley's script is interesting, but it deals mostly with the supposition that Amelia and her flight engineer were captured by the Japanese, and held incommunicado."

"There's no doubt that he wasn't her lover," Clark insisted. "Noonan had just gotten married before the flight, and he went because he wanted money."

What does Clark think really happened to Amelia Earhart?

"My feeling is that her plane, an Electra, had a flying range of 3,000 miles. She left the plane's trailing antennae in Miami because of weight.

"They were heading into strange territory. They apparently miscalculated. I think the plane went down in the Pacific, crashed, and sank."

Having portrayed two super women, which was the more difficult role for her?

"Amelia was much more difficult. She was a much more complicated personality. She was ambivalent about her marriage, shy, introspective, and embarrassed about all the publicity she got. Her renown surpassed that of Babe's. Amelia was honored by heads of state. The public adored her like a pop star today."

If superwomen are out for now, then what next?

"You Should See What You're Missing" will show you just that, all the controversial scenes that have been cut out of TV shows on commercial television in recent years. The show, which is set to air Friday, Nov. 26 over PBS, offers ten top TV writers, editors, producers and directors voicing their frustrations over the various forms of censorship they've encountered.

The interviews will be liberally sprinkled with footage, so you'll be able to judge for yourself whether the "protection" you're getting from the commercial networks is needed or wanted.

"People who bring ideas to television development people are often invited really to leave their brains and their hearts and their feelings outside the door." Larry Gelbart, co-producer/writer of M*A*S*H

"There are so many talented writers, directors and actors, I just can't help thinking what a pity it is that we don't have a medium that calls out for the best, but calls out for the worst in them." Abby Mann, creator/writer of Medical Story

"If you do something that everybody likes of necessity you abdicate all points of view, you eliminate all controversy, and what you wind up with is a kind of innocuous pablum." Danny Arnold, executive producer of Barney Miller

Tennessee Williams Pulitzer Prize-winning play, "Cat on a Hot Tin Roof," starring Laurence Olivier, Natalie Wood, Robert Wagner and Maureen Stapleton, has been set for a December 6th showing on NBC Monday Night at the Movies.

This production will launch "A Tribute to American Theatre," a series of major drama specials drawn from the works of leading 20th century American playwrights. Olivier is creative and artistic producer as well as occasional performer. Titles for future productions have yet to be announced by the network.

The nationally acclaimed American Conservatory Theatre will bring it's high-spirited, lusty interpretation of William Shakespeare's "The Taming of the Shrew" to Theatre in America, part of PBS's Great Performances series, on November 10.

TIMOTHY THOMERSON (standing) and TERRY KISER, at the organ, star as amateur musicians who moonlight on the Las Vegas Strip when they aren't working as undercover cops in NBC Movie of the Week: "Benny and Barney, The Aristocrats," Nov. 3 (8:30-10 p.m., ET).

'I take it as it comes'

No game plan for Carol Burnett

By DAN LEWIS

"My whole life has never been a game plan," Carol Burnett noted. "I take it as it comes . . . and it's worked."

She paused, thought, then added:

"Ten years in the same job in this business is very fortunate. I have no complaints, no matter what happens."

She is a rarity in television. In an era when comedy and variety shows on a weekly basis have not flourished, Carol has been successful for a decade, defying the trend. CBS thought so much of Carol and her Saturday night gang that the network flew them all into New York -- Harvey Korman (who already has announced his decision to leave the show next season for an ABC series of his own), Vicki Lawrence and Tim Conway (elevated from "frequent guest" to a regular this season) -- for a special tribute to Carol just before the season started. The network also flew in press from around the country for the occasion.

CBS has good cause to be grateful to Carol. She started at the network in 1962 on a 10-year contract, which gave her the choice of shows in the first five years. It meant, Carol recalled, that she had the option to pick her own type of show, and whatever it was, CBS had to put the series on the air.

For almost five years, Carol couldn't make up her mind. She and her producer-husband Joe Hamilton finally made the decision to go with variety just a week before the first half of the original contract expired. Had she not come to a decision, Carol would have been at CBS' mercy for the next five years of the contract.

CBS wasn't wild about the variety idea. In fact, Carol was assigned one of the more treacherous hours of the week -- Saturday at 10 p.m.

"I just figured that variety is what I felt I could do best on television. And if I failed, I wanted to fail on my own terms," Carol reflected. "CBS was so unenthusiastic about comedy-variety, they even had a replacement show all set to go into my hour."

The rest is history. She has become one of television's biggest stars, a Saturday night staple. And each succeeding season marks little change in the show's concept. In fact, Carol notes, the only real change in the 10 years is the addition of Tim Conway as a regular this season.

"The show changes by nature, as people do," she observed. "Things evolve. Our new characters have all started as one-time sketches. We did the family skit two years ago and it worked well. So it stayed. Tim wrote the harried boss character last year and it was very funny. It, too, is staying."

This year, Carol also is hoping to successfully introduce a new personality onto the show. Her name is Kay Cole, and Carol and her husband picked her out of "Chorus Line," the big Broadway musical hit.

"She only has a small role (in "Chorus Line") but you haven't heard a Broadway voice like this in years. She only weighs about a pound and a half. We flew her in for a taping. She's got a cute personality, and she's an actress who sings and dances."

The formula that has been successful for Carol over these ten years has been the development of larger-than-life characters and playing them for the big laughs.

"We don't go for jokes," Carol said. "I'm kind of from the old school. I love pratt falls and slapstick. That's become a dirty word in this era of satire and caustic comedy."

Perhaps as noted earlier, Carol doesn't work from a game plan, but that doesn't mean she won't think of doing other things. She has a Thanksgiving night special with Beverly Sills -- "Sills and Burnett at the Met" -- on CBS-TV.

She also would like to do a film, and she would like to do a TV special with Dick Van Dyke (she guest-starred in one of Dick's new shows this season on NBC).

She would like to do a television version of another Broadway hit. Several seasons back, she costarred with Alan Alda in "Six Rooms, Riv Vu," and enjoyed it immensely. Now she's eyeing "Guys and Dolls."

"I've always wanted to play Adelaide," she confided.

In recent years, part of her hiatus has been occupied with theater in California. She talked George Kennedy into making his stage debut in "Plaza Suite," then convinced Rock Hudson to do likewise in "I Do, I Do." Now she's hoping to do "Same Time, Next Year" with George Segal.

But if the Hollywood actor is afraid of the stage, Carol's children aren't. All three -- Carrie, 12; Jody, 9; and Erin, 8 -- are interested in acting, Carol reported. They even perform at home for their parents. "They created a TV game show -- they call it "The Hot Seat" -- and put it on in their room. Carrie has come out of the closet and admitted she wants to be an actress. It doesn't disturb me. I'm having a good time, and I think it's good for kids to have a goal."

By Ralph Dixon Love

A number of persons within the Andice community met Monday night, October 25, for a called meeting at the school building to complete plans for the upcoming Andice Community 10th Arts and Crafts Country Style Fair, slated for November 13 at the school building from 9 a.m. until 6 p.m. Committees finalized their work group efforts to place this show among the most successful activities sponsored by the Andice community.

This Arts and Crafts Fair is a community participation activity that proves an attraction for persons over Central Texas to come back to the country to share in experiencing a taste of quality art, crafts and handwork creations in the natural setting of the real country-style of living which is currently in demand.

AMONG CONSIGNED displays to be seen at this Fair include oil paintings of landscapes, florals, boutiques and rustic preservation of old homesteads and homeplaces that are victim to transition of time and soon to be recalled only in memory of those persons who cared. Mrs. Jan Knox of Austin and other area artists will be offering such art media for display and sale.

Assorted handmade crochet articles of vast array of colors, and ideal for Christmas giftgiving will be offered by Miss Lela Mae Baker, Mrs. Ann Moore and other area craftsmen. Candy-filled Christmas tree ornaments and other handcrafted items will be offered by Misses Dawn and Tammy Bell and Carol Ann Moore, and others.

Helen Wade of Andice's Serendipity Boutique Shop will offer an assorted selection of her handmade quality items for every gift need. Her clothing specialty of originals for children and grownups will be offered; or a calico splittailed bonnet can be had along with handmade men's ties by Mrs. Olga Jacob of Andice and other community seamstresses.

WHEN FOLKS COME OUT into the country in our community they come to "take dinner" with us. The community sets the little pot into the big pot and they care enough to serve the very best "Country Cookin' " they can set on the table.

Mrs. Grady Howland, Mrs. Ralph Love and Mrs. Gene Pearson will be "ramrodders" of the pots, pans and stewing kettles for this real "Country Cooking" that will be available throughout the day. This group plans a country-style menu consisting of brown beans, cornbread, onion; deluxe chicken and spaghetti that will prove country-lickin' good from the ovens of some top country cooks.

A treat and classic of foods will be the extraordinary quality chili as can only be made by the Wear family of Andice. Assorted sandwiches, homebaked loaves of bread, served with butter — hot and by the slice, or by the loaf to go — (rye, brown, white and Swedish brown). From early morning, hot coffee, homemade coffeecakes, sweetrolls and raised dough pastry will be offered by Mrs. Olga Jacob and Mrs. Emilee Love and others. An assortment of home-baked pies and cakes by a number of good cooks in our community will be available throughout the day.

All proceeds of this show will be used to continue the restoration of our school building which serves all our community and its activities.

Exhibition spaces of ample display area are still available for the Arts and Crafts Fair at $5 per exhibit. The show is being limited to approximately 30 exhibitors to allow ample show area. Anyone desiring to display is urged to contact Mrs. Helen Wade at Serendipity Boutique Shop in Andice by calling (512-783 2296.

A VERY COLORFUL hand-pieced and quilted quilt of red, white and blue, our American symbol—especially during this bicentennial year, is captivated within an eight pointed star pattern above an underlining of bright red with white stitching by the piece, revealing a touch of quality almost lost with the quilting artists of the past generation.

The community offers this handfinished queen-size bed quilt to the public in a drawing scheduled for 4 p.m. November 13.

The public is urged to come out and enjoy this community affair. Admission is free.

THE LONG LINE — A crowd of over 500 turned out for the Pancake Supper despite cold and windy conditions. They were rewarded for their trouble with stacks of piping hot, delicious pancakes and bacon, milk, and coffee. The Lions also kept steaming butter and syrup coming from the kitchen.

THC recognizes county Historical Commission

The Williamson County Historical Commission received a Distinguished Service Award at the 1976 Annual Historic Preservation Conference, held in Galveston Oct. 29 and 30.

Van C. Tipton, WCHC Chairman, accepted the award during ceremonies of the conference, which was cosponsored by the Texas Historical Commission and Texas Historical Foundation.

The state commission administers the awards program, designed to recognize those county historical commissions who have made outstanding local contributions to preservation within the past year.

In presenting the award, THC Chairman Mrs. Wesley B. Blankenship cited the WCHC for coordinating numerous bicentennial activities and projects, such as the restoration of the late Governor Dan Moody's former home.

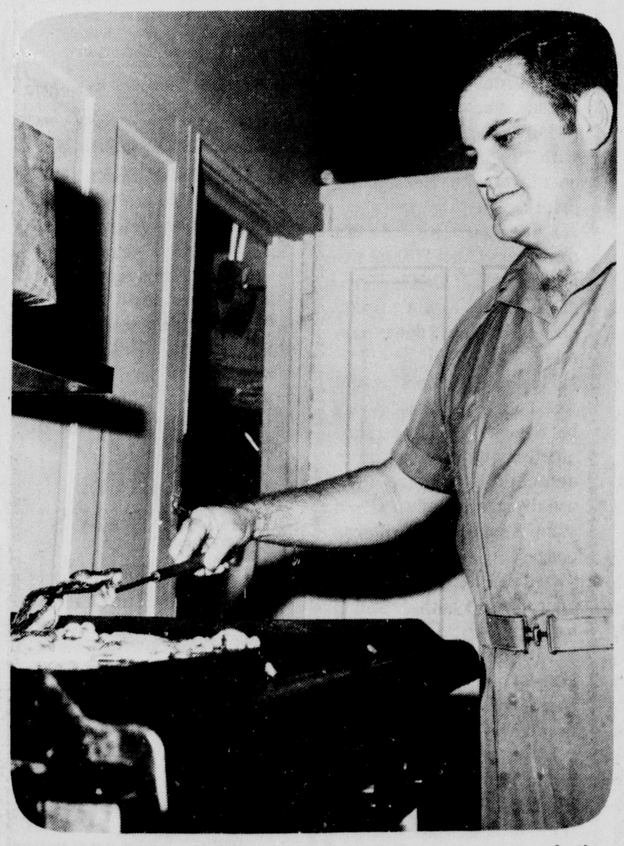
Goodies from the Lions

PICKLE PAUSES — U. S. Congressman J. J. "Jake" Pickle, representative for the district which includes Georgetown, stops to speak with one of his constituents during the Lions Pancake Supper. Pickle was present most of the night, greeting old acquaintances and making new ones.

TURN, BABY, TURN — Dr. Bob McKay has his spatula at the ready to flip those hotcakes during the Georgetown Noon Lions Club's Pancake Supper last Wednesday night. The club raised over $700 to support its sight conservation and other civic projects.



BATCHES OF BACON — Don Hewlett, president of the Georgetown Noon Lions Club, had his share of flipping to do in order to provide lots of hungry pancake eaters with a delicious bacon side dish. Donations for the Pancake Supper included 140 pounds of pancake mix from the Georgetown H.E.B. Store; two cases of butter, three cases of syrup, five cases of milk, and 50 pounds of bacon from Piggly Wiggly; one case of butter, two cases of syrup, two cases of milk, and 70 pounds of pancake mix from Safeway; and 100 pounds of bacon from the San Gabriel Meat Company. Hewlett and other Lions showed up as early as 2 p.m. Wednesday to begin cooking.

We have two new homes in Golden Oaks. These are quality homes with the fine touches for gracious living. Both are ready for your final touches and are on acreage tracts.

Bring your hammer and paintbrush and as you work, enjoy the 3 bedrooms, 2 baths, and large fenced yard. This house is priced below $17,-000.

Looking for one of Georgetown's lovely large old homes with lots of charm and lots of huge pecan trees? I have one with 4 bedrooms, 1½ baths on 2 large lots. Reasonably priced.

Veteran no down payment! Over 1400 ft. living space for $28,050. Nice area. Also, F.H.A. financing with small down payment.

This lovely place is not just a 3 bdrm., 2 bath house but a home. Its many niceties include a large detached workshop, unusually pretty redwood and stone fence, and covered patio.

Older home with 3 bedrooms, 2 baths, central heat & air. Unusual arrangement would be perfect for studio, hobby room, (or maybe a mother-in-law?).

By CAROLYN BONNER & EDWARD WILKIE

ON THURSDAY, NOVEMBER 4th, DR. BILL JACKSON, Area 4-H and Youth Specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service will be in Williamson County to conduct an adult leader training workshop. This workshop will be directed toward improving the total county 4-H program by involving more parents and recruiting more minority leaders into the 4-H program.

For the 4-H program to work effectively throughout the county it is very important that each 4-H club have volunteer adult leaders to help coordinate and provide direction to the 4-H program. The 4-H clubs throughout the county are experiencing growth in membership and it becomes more and more important that we have additional adult leaders who are willing to help provide educational programs for the benefit of these youngsters. Project areas are widely varied and any adult who is interested in assisting with the 4-H program in an area of their own interest is encouraged to contact the County Extension Office, or a local 4-H club leader.

We would like to encourage all Williamson County 4-H adult leaders to be present at this meeting. It will begin at 7:30 p.m. Thursday, November 4th, in the Festive Room of the First National Bank, Georgetown. If you have any questions regarding the recruitment of adult leaders, this will be an excellent opportunity to hear Dr. Jackson speak on this topic.

Prior to this meeting we have called a meeting of the Williamson County 4-H and Youth Committee for 6:30 p.m. in the Festive Room. Dr. Jackson will speak briefly about the purpose and responsibilities of the 4-H and Youth Committee and present a slide series on this committee. Hopefully, this will enable the 4-H and Youth Committee to better keep in touch with correct youth needs and develop goals in response to these needs. All committee members are urged to attend this meeting.

LEADER TRAINING will be conducted at the Texas 4-H Center November 6 and 7. Topics will include 4-H Method Demonstrations, 4-H Shooting Sports Project, Home Environment Project, and Working with Teens.

The cost will be $14 Leader travel scholarships are available. If you are interested, call 863-2318 to make a reservation this week.

THE BI-MONTHLY MEETING of the Williamson County 4-H Adult Leaders Association will be held Monday, November 1, beginning at 7:30 p.m. at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Jack Winterrowd, Thrall (go out of Thrall on Highway 79 toward Thorndale — about two and a half miles. Turn left at two large oil tanks. Go about another mile and it is the second house on the left — new brick home.)

UCP drive begins

Residents of Georgetown and area towns will have a special opportunity to do their part in the fight against cerebral palsy — a condition caused by damage to the brain, usually at birth. During November, United Cerebral Palsy of Texas launches its campaign here, according to Doctor James L. Shepherd, County Chairman.

Approximately 40,000 cerebral palsied children and adults live in Texas and are served by programs that enable each individual to develop his capabilities to the fullest.

In addition to supporting these programs, Dr. Shepherd reported that 25 percent of funds raised during the campaign will support State and National UCP program. These include research into the causes of cerebral palsy, specialized medical training and guarding the interests of handicapped individuals in governmental programs.

United Cerebral Palsy of Texas provides supportive equipment for children and adults with cerebral palsy at no cost to their families. In addition a State Program Director is available for Parent counseling, program evaluation, establishing new programs and services and developing seminars and workshops.

Literature on cerebral palsy is available at no cost to Parents, Teachers and Students according to Dr. Shepherd.

Southwestern hosts first swimming meet

Southwestern University's first intercollegiate swimming meet will be held Wednesday afternoon, November 3, in the new Sid W. Richardson Physical Education Center's natatorium.

Entering the meet along with Southwestern will be San Antonio College and Lee College of Baytown.

Ten events will be held for both men and women, including the 200-yard medley relay at 1:30 p.m., the 200 yard freestyle at 1:45, the 50-yard freestyle at 1:55, the 200-yard individual medley at 2 p.m., and the 100-yard butterfly at 2:10.

Diving competition from the one-meter board will begin at 2:20 p.m. with contestants taking five required dives.

The final four swimming events will begin about 3 p.m. with the 100 yard freestyle, the 100-yard backstroke about 3:10, the 100 yard breatstroke at 3:20 and the 400-yard freestyle relay.

All events will be finals with two contestants entered in each event from each school.

There are grandstands for observing the pool, and spectators are welcome to the meet. Admission will be free.

Grace Episcopal sets service

Wednesday evening, November 3, the Rt. Rev. Roger H. Cilley, Suffragan Bishop of the Diocese of Texas, will be at Grace Episcopal Church for the service of Confirmation. The service will begin at 7 p.m. There will be a reception in Canterbury House honoring the Bishop and the newly confirmed persons immediately following the service.

Former JuCo mates leaders for Pirates

Part of the reason for Southwestern University's successful basketball season last year was the fact that the players were a unified, close-knit group.

The closeness of the team resulted in part from numerous players being junior college teammates before they came to Southwestern. Two players who exemplify this are Joe Buchanan and Jimmy Duffield, who played together while attending Navarro Junior College in Corsicana.

Duffield, a senior from Houston, gained All-Conference honors while instrumental in leading his team to two very successful seasons. In addition to basketball, Jimmy enjoys numerous other sports, especially football.

Joe Buchanan, Southwestern's Most Valuable Player last year, also gained All-Conference acclaim while at Navarro. The Bryan native also led his team in scoring. Buchanan was on the receiving end of many a long scoring pass from teammate Duffield last season as they continually frustrated opposing defenses.

Both Duffield and Buchanan figure prominently in Pirate plans again this year. Jimmy and Joe are both confident that their team has the tools for obtaining the Big State Conference this time around. Duffield says, "we had a good chance to win it last year. This time we won't miss the opportunity." Buchanan simply adds, "I know we can win it."

Kim Stelzer honored by Study Club

Kim Stelzer, a senior at Georgetown High School and daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Fritz Stelzer, has been selected by the Georgetown Study Club as their Guest of Honor for the month of November.

Kim has been a member of the high school band since her freshman year. During her sophomore and junior years she was in the District and Region band. Kim was a member of the F.H.A. her freshman and sophomore years. In her junior year she was elected to the National Honor Society and became a member of the Spanish Club.

Kim plans to attend Southwest Texas State University where she will major in history and minor in business.

Tip-Off agenda filled

A number of special events highlight this month's agenda for the Southwestern University Tip-Off Club. The November 4 luncheon meeting, to be held in the Student Union Building, will feature Georgetown High basketball coach Dan Noll. Noll will discuss plans for the November 18 double-header game against the Rockdale Tigers. The game will precede the Southwestern - Southeastern Oklahoma game and will begin at 6:30 p.m.

The November 16 meeting will be held in the University Commons beginning at 6 p.m. Tip-Off club members and their guests will have an opportunity to meet the players and eat in a specially reserved area for a cost of $2.25 per plate. Following the dinner, a special clinic will be held in the Richardson Center, allowing fans to get a preview look at this year's Pirates, both offensively and defensively. The clinic will begin at 7 p.m.

CONSTABLE-ELECT Jerry Drummond of Round Rock displays the design he has chosen for arm patches for his uniforms and which, eventually, he hopes reserve deputy constables in the Round Rock area will be chosen to wear. County commissioners approved an expenditure request for Drummond Tuesday morning, agreeing not only to purchase a minimum 50 patches at $5.25 each, but also to provide overhead lights and a siren system for the vehicle he purchased for the job, a riot shotgun, emergency first aid kit, handcuffs and other equipment. While commissioners deleted the request that the county provide uniforms for the constable, Drummond emphasized the professional appearance they render. He — and any reserve force chosen — will provide their own uniforms.

San Antonio area accepts Challenge

Alumni of Southwestern University kicked off a campaign to meet the Brown Challenge in the San Antonio area this week.

Graduates of the state's oldest university met Monday evening in St. Andrew's United Methodist Church to lay plans for contacting the 450 Southwestern alumni in the San Antonio area.

The Brown Challenge is a 10-year program offered by The Brown Foundation, Inc., of Houston to give Southwestern almost $11 million for the fixed endowment if Southwestern's constituency contributes about $8.4 million for operational funds.

The university is working to raise $575,000 to meet its first year quota of that challenge this year. More than $300,000 has been raised with only two months left to raise the remaining funds for this year.

Tom Vickers, class of 1965, is the area chairman for the San Antonio challenge. Vickers and his group of workers will be focusing on meeting this year's challenge by getting contributions from as many as possible to qualify for special class goals.

Girl Scouts go haunting

Witches and vampires, ghosts and goblins, queens and dolls were there for the Halloween Party at Molly Burnette's house, Monday night. Girl Scout Troop 266 had all of its 24 members present for the affair, plus its two leaders, Lois Vasquez and Nelda Burson and the hostess' mother, Lynn Burnette.

The party was planned and carried out by the four patrols. The Sugar Babies, Julie Burson, Teresa Thomas, Cheryl Dedeck, Judy Shuffield, Tracy Raby and Lisa Monetti, prepared the delicious orange cupcakes, witches brew and witches hats filled with candy.

The Busy Bees Patrol was in charge of decorations. They met early at Molly's house to hang the scary creations made by the entire troop. Members of this patrol are Molly Burnette, Jan Vickers, Andrea Moreles, Karla Braun, Emily Ramos, and Tracy Davis.

Games were chosen and organized by the Honey Bees, who are Patricia Rothhammer, Vivian Vasquez, Ranae Hyatt, Margo Andrews, Tifany Parker, and Tarsia Butler. Some of the games were Sweep the Sock Relay, Witch Face, bobbing for apples, dart throwing and breaking a giant pumpkin pinata filled with candy.

The Supertroop, Rachel Bracamontez, Andrea Weisberg, Amanda Maldondo, Kim Ischy, Laurinda Acosta, and Iva Davis were responsible for planning and carrying out the costume contests. Prizes were awarded for the spookiest, the weirdest, the prettiest, the funniest, and the most unique.

Students accept Challenge

More than half the student body has responded by giving more than $800.

"Before it's over we plan to have 80 percent participation," says student leader George Young.

The Brown Challenge is a 10 year program offered by The Brown Foundation, Inc. of Houston to give Southwestern almost $11 million for the fixed endowment if Southwestern's constituency contributes about $8.4 million for operational funds.

The state's oldest university is working to raise $575,000 to meet its first year quota of that challenge this year. With two months to go, more than $300,000 has been raised.

"We want a piece of the action," says Young. "We really have more at stake in this school this year than anyone — that's why we figured we should help."

Young said that "the generous program established by The Brown Foundation not only matches our new gifts on a 2-1 basis, but will also give a $50,000 bonus to the University in honor of the classes that have more than half of its members contributing.

"Alumni, especially those from privately supported schools, need to support those schools. We want to get into the giving habit before we graduate," Young said.

Mr. and Mrs. A. W. Bowen will celebrate their 50th wedding anniversary on Sunday, November 7th, with a reception from 2 until 4 p.m. at Stonehaven Center.

The event will be hosted by Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Cammack of Longview and their children Terri and Steven.

Gene Fondren speaks Tuesday at Commons

Gene Fondren, executive vice-president of the Texas Automobile Dealers Association, will speak at Southwestern University at Georgetown Tuesday, November 2.

Fondren will speak on the topic of lobbying in Washington at the noon meeting of the Political Science Society at Southwestern. The meeting will be held in the upstairs dining room of the University Commons.

Before joing the TADA, Fondren served as vice-president of the Missouri-Pacific Railroad in Texas. Earlier he was the Washington lobbyist for the Texas Railroads and he also served three terms in the House.

He also is a member of the law firm of Fox and Fondren in Taylor.

Fondren is a director of the Texas Society of Association Executives and of the Texas Good Road Association, and he is a member of the executive committee of the Texas Highway Users Conference.

Any interested person is invited to attend the meeting. Those desiring to eat at the meeting may purchase their meal in the cafeteria line in the Commons and may take their tray upstairs.

LOOK OUT MISS AMERICA — Georgetown Jr. High students staged a horror pageant October 28 in celebration of Halloween. One of the finalists for the Miss Frankenstein crown was the lovely Miss Swampland, Tammy Rydell.

A Thousand Clowns opens at Zachary Scott Theatre

The Broadway comedy hit, "A Thousand Clowns," is the new play at the Zachary Scott Theater Center in Austin. It will run from October 29 to November 20. Performances are Thursday through Sunday with an 8:15 curtain, and a special Sunday matinee at 2:15.

"A Thousand Clowns" is about an oddball TV-writer who is uninhibited, undisciplined, and. . . unemployed.

Call 476-0541 for reservations.

Dr. Coleman gives revival in Moffatt

Dr. Adrian W. Coleman will be the evangelist for a weekend revival at the Moffatt Baptist Church at Moffatt, Texas on November 6 and 7.

Dr. Coleman is Vice President for Advancement at Mary Hardin-Baylor College. He pastored churches in Lampasas and Georgetown in this area and served several years as missionary to Liberia.

STANDING TALL — Leslie Austin atop Cindy Howry led the Georgetown High School student body and local citizens in rousing cheers Thursday afternoon in an allout effort to "Spook Westlake."

Faculty additions aid GISD

The Georgetown Independent School District is fighting to keep classroom student loads down to 25 per teacher, and addition of two new instructors to the district's faculty will aid in that effort, School Supt. Jack Frost said last week.

Four new teachers were hired at the school board's last regular meeting, including Jean Holden, Pat Crowley, Judith McCain and Kay Nell Harris. Mrs. McCain and Mrs. Harris are teaching at the Georgetown Primary and Westside Intermediate Schools, respectively, and helping to keep the pupil to teacher ratio close to 25.

"We keep a close count on our daily attendance, and our school board is striving to keep class loads down," said Frost. "We feel this is conducive to a better learning situation, because once you get past 25 it becomes a burden on the teacher. Ours is a good stable growth so far, but it has caused us to have to increase our faculty."

Frost pointed out that the total is expected to go over 3,700 within ten years.

SBA Seminar for small businesses in Austin Nov. 9

The Small Business Administration is sponsoring a free Small Business Seminar. The subject matter will be "Financial Management" for the Small Business."

The seminar is designed to give a down-to-earth, basic fundamental understanding of what financial management is all about and how it affects the day-to-day operation of a business. The seminar will also be helpful for those wishing to start a business.

The seminar is scheduled for Tuesday, November 9, 1976, 4:00 to 9:00 p.m., at the Austin Public Library, Oak Springs Branch, 3101 Oak Springs Drive (Off Airport Boulevard), Austin, Texas.

Advance reservations are necessary and can be made by calling the Austin SCORE Office between 10:00 a.m. and 2:00 p.m., Monday through Friday, at 297-5111, or notifying the Small Business Administration at 727 E. Durango, San Antonio, Texas 78206, telephone number (A.C. 512) 229-6285.

WATERMELONS GROWING IN TREES! What's Clara Scarbrough up to now? well, actually those are ornamental gourds hanging up there but one of the neighbors got a bit excited when he saw them recently. They do look like watermelons, same color, but a lot lot lighter. They are the last surviving fruit of the Scarbrough gardening effort this past summer.

UW tally day party planned

"You're invited," said Linda Graves, United Way Drive Chairman for the Georgetown campaign announced.

What are you invited to?

It's the fund's final tally day celebration at 12:30 p.m. this Friday, which UW directors will celebrate in front of the thermometer that has faithfully gauged the upward climb of local contributions as workers strive to meet the $19,650 goal.

AT LAST TALLY, 95 percent of the goal — $18,787 — had been pledged.

Will the drive reach 100 percent by November 5?

In case of inclement weather, the celebration will be held in the Festival Room of the First National Bank.

Huffmaster performs at Houston luncheon

Drusilla Huffmaster, artist-in-residence and associate professor of piano in the School of Fine Arts at Southwestern University, will perform works of Chopin, Barber, Lucas and Griffes for the Junior League Friday Musicale of Houston at a luncheon program on November 5 at the Junior League Building in Houston.

The program is a bicentennial tribute to the late Miss Ima Hogg, philanthropist and patroness of the arts.

Miss Huffmaster will be playing Chopin's "Four Mazurkas, Op. 30" (C Minor, B Minor, D Flat Major, C Sharp Minor), Barber's "Excursion, No. 2," Griffes' "Scherzo," and "Sonette" (Third Movement, "Lively") by Dr. Theodore Lucas, Dean of the School of Fine Arts at Southwestern University.

Dividing her time between performing and teaching, Miss Huffmaster has achieved an enviable reputation in both fields. Her engagements have included concerts in music centers in Europe and in numerous states in this country. Among the orchestras Miss Huffmaster has appeared with as soloist are the National Symphony and the National-Gallery Orchestra of Washington, D.C., the Chautauqua Symphony (New York), Dallas, San Antonio, Austin, Houston — re-engaged 13 times to appear with this brilliant orchestra), Lake Charles, La., and Juilliard orchestras.

Annual engagements for Miss Huffmaster have included the Junior League Friday Musicales in Houston and as regular guest artist with the Houston Music Guild. Miss Huffmaster is listed among the recording artists of the Piano guild Library.

Many honors and awards have come to Drusilla Huffmaster. She is the recipient of the Matrix Award in fine arts given by the Houston professional chapter of Women in Communication, national fraternity for women in journalism, for her "outstanding contribution in the field of music." She is also the recipient of the "Star of Delta Omicron," an award given by Delta Omicron, international professional music fraternity, for "outstanding achievements in the field of music and for her interest in the contribution to service, betterment, and ultimate welfare of women in music."

Allied van proposes winter move incentives

Allied Van Lines, Inc., has filed a proposed new schedule of reduced seasonal rates with the Household Goods Carriers' Bureau, according to MacLeod Smith, Sales Manager of Scobey Moving & Storage Company, an Allied agent in Austin, Texas.

The action will provide the moving consumer with an eight percent reduction in current rates from November through May 15, 1977 — a traditionally slow moving season for household goods carriers.

Mr. Smith explained: "The proposed new schedule of seasonally reduced rates is one of the most innovative steps ever taken by a household goods carrier to reduce the summer peak moving season for household goods carriers.

Under the proposed new rate structure families moving interstate during the 'off season' would not only benefit from the eight percent reduction, but would receive more personalized, efficient service due to increased, more productive operational and man power capabilities.

Mr. Smith added that the rates for summer moves — May through October — would be increased by eight percent above current levels as an incentive for consumers to move during the 'off season' months, thereby equalizing the country's present relocation patterns. Historically, 60 percent of the household goods movers' business occurs during the hectic summer months and dramatically tapers during the 'off season'.

Proposed cotton board assessment hike explained at Taylor meeting

The vital need for cotton producers to maintain and build momentum for their fiber in the marketplace through increased research and promotion was stressed at a meeting in Taylor on Thursday.

Presiding was Kenneth Johnson, Hutto producer. He explained the meeting was one of a series being arranged by the National Cotton Council to discuss cotton's research and promotion needs and opportunities and a proposal to meet those needs.

DETAILS of the proposal were explained by Producer L. C. Unfred of Tahoka, who was lead-off speaker.

"Under the proposal, producer assessment for research and promotion would be increased by four-tenths of one per cent of the gross sales price of each bale of cotton, beginning with the 1977 crop," he stated. "This would be in addition to the current $1 per bale."

He added that after 1977 the supplemental assessment could be increased in increments up to one per cent on the recommendation of the Cotton Board and the Secretary of Agriculture.

"THE COTTON BOARD has made it very plain, however, that this would be done only after an in-depth study showed conclusively that the program was being conducted with maximum effectiveness, that its effectiveness could be increased only with additional financing, and that producers themselves indicated an overwhelming sentiment for an increase," Unfred stated.

He further explained that all other aspects of the program remain virtually unchanged, including the right for any producer to obtain a refund.

The speaker stated that testimony at recent U.S. Department of Agriculture hearings across the Cotton Belt indicated strong producer support for the proposal.

HE ADDED that the enabling legislation calls for a referendum in which producers would vote on increasing the assessment.

He explained that in 1975 producers of synthetic fibers spent $230 million in fiber research compared with $5.4 million by growers through Cotton Incorporated (CI). The odds in fiber advertising ran $60 million versus $3.4 million for cotton.

Pointing out that inflation has hurt cotton's research and promotion effort, he said the $1 per bale approved by growers in the 1966 referendum will buy only 60 cents worth of these tools today. In addition, supplemental government funds now have been eliminated.

CITED AS areas where "we can expect to get more for our money" were the following:

- Increased textile research in durable press, fire retardance, and knits;
- Agricultural research in specific problem areas, such as byssinosis and pest management;
- Stepped-up fabric development and fashion support to keep mills thinking about cotton and higher cotton blends;
- Much heavier merchandising and advertising support to increase consumer demand; and
- More work in the international field to increase exports.

IT WAS EMPHASIZED that in most areas additional funds will go directly into programs since CI already has an efficient and professional staff in place.

Cited as a prime example of progress was research leading to a more efficient system of seed cotton processing and handling. It was reported that the system saved producers $7 million in 1974 and that the saving could exceed $10 million during the 1976 harvest season.

ANOTHER EXAMPLE cited was the producer-financed effort to increase the percentage of cotton — and thus its market share — in broadcloth, oxford, and other lightweight fabrics.

CI staff members reported that as a result of these efforts, six mills and converters now are producing "Natural Blend" shirting fabrics. Thirteen prominent shirt brands are using the fabric, which must contain at least 60 per cent cotton. The next step is to change blend levels in additional volume markets.

The staff explained that success in this project was achieved through a total marketing approach — fabric development, mill contacts, fashion design, merchandising and advertising.

THE NATURAL BLEND— Buck Telander of Hutto, (left), and Leon Schrank of Georgetown examine the "Natural Blend" permanent press shirt that offers consumers more cotton comfort. Now being marketed by 13 leading firms, the shirt was developed by Cotton Incorporated with grower dollar-a-bale funds. The shirts contain at least 60 per cent cotton instead of the 35 per cent they did a year or so ago. This development, the growers point out, is building markets and profits for growers and giving consumers a better product.

St. Louis encephalitis (or SLE), often referred to as "sleeping sickness," is causing concern and fear among Texans.

SLE is caused by a virus carried by certain species of mosquitoes. Illness in humans is the result of the SLE virus invading the tissues of the brain and other parts of the central nervous system.

Symptoms range from a mild reaction involving a few days of fever and headaches to more grave reactions characterized by chills, nausea and vomiting, high fever, severe headaches, confusion, drowsiness, convulsions, and, in some cases, death.

According to Dr. Jim Olson, medical entomologist with the Texas Agricultural Experiment Station, small birds, such as sparrows, are the natural host and source of SLE virus. Mosquitoes pick up the virus by feeding on the blood of infected birds. Man becomes involved in the cycle when infected mosquitoes, seeking additional meals, feed on humans, transmitting the virus to them.

The mosquito species most frequently involved in human outbreaks of SLE in Texas and other parts of the southern U. S. is Culex quinque-fasciatus, or the "southern house mosquito."

Olson says that at present, no vaccine has been developed that will protect humans from SLE. Control of SLE outbreaks hinges, almost entirely, on the rapid suppression of infected adult mosquito populations in the vicinity of human populations. This is usually accomplished with low volume applications of insecticides from aircraft and ground vehicles.

★ County swine flu clinics

low in Bell County, he could requisition some of the vaccine from the larger county for use here in Williamson.

In addition to the nurses and lay volunteers, doctors from the Georgetown Medical and Surgical Hospital have volunteered to be present not only at the Georgetown clinic but at other clinics if they are needed elsewhere in the county. While doctors at the Taylor hospital will not be present at the clinic there, they will be on call.

Myers explained that the doctors will not be giving shots — "unless they just want to" — but will be available to answer questions and in case of any emergency which might arise.

HE STRESSED his own "reassurance that there's nothing in the vaccine which can harm you, with the admonition that there are certain groups of people who should not take it anyway: those who are allergic to eggs or people who are running fever at the time of the clinic or who have colds.

Myers warned that all persons eligible to receive the bivalent serum would be required to present their physician's statement that they are 65 or older, or that they suffer from one of the following chronic illnesses: chronic broncho-pulmonary disease, such as asthma or cystic fibrosis; heart disease; chronic neuromuscular disorders; chronic renal diseases; diabetes and other chronic metabolic disorders; malignancies and immunodeficiency states.

Persons who have fever should delay receiving the immunization and persons who have received another type of vaccine within 14 days should consult a physician before taking the flu vaccine.

No private physicians in Williamson County are administering the vaccine, although nursing homes in the county have received their quota of the bivalent vaccine and will have their house doctors authorize the shots there, Myers said.

CHILDREN UNDER 18 will not be given the shots unless they are chronically ill. Children between the ages of 3 and 17 who have a physician's signed statement that they are chronically ill can receive the immunization at any of the mass survey clinics or later from their family physician.

Reports indicate that dosage amounts for children are still being tested by the federal government, and may be released at a later date for administration locally.

While most types of influenza virus affect the elderly and the chronically ill, Myers explained that the swine flu attacks primarily the young, healthy adult between the ages of approximately 20 and 45.

"This is the thing that was so devastating about the 1918 episode: so many of the young people died."

Because of this, Myers urges every eligible adult in Williamson County to receive the shot.

Also, this is the reason the bivalent vaccine will be administered to the elderly.

In addition to the swine flu inoculation, the bivalent serum contains the killed virus of the flu which made the rounds last year — one of the more usual types which more often affects the elderly or chronically ill.

TEXAS GOVERNOR Dolph Briscoe recently designated the months of October, November and December as "Influenza Immunization Months" in Texas and urged all Texans to avail themselves of the free protection from the flu.

"Public health authorities have stated that the potentially lethal 'swine' influenza virus could strike the American population this winter," Briscoe stated in urging Texans to take the shots. "The members of Congress have declared that a potential public health emergency exists; and taxpayers' monies have been appropriated for the development and distribution of an effective vaccine against 'swine' influenza."

Can you spare a home? Foster parents needed

"Excuse me, but can you spare a home?"

This is the question that is being asked by numerous children in Central Texas who are in need of a foster home. The Texas Department of Public Welfare is looking for people in this area who are interested in the foster care program and who could perhaps help a child during a troubled period in his or her life. More foster homes are needed.

EVERY WEEK five to ten children are being left homeless as a result of the family breaking apart. The causes for these breakups may be alcoholism; emotional or physical illness; abuse, neglect, or abandonment of the child by the natural parents. It is at this time, when the child needs to be removed from his home for his own safety and well-being, that foster parents come in.

What is foster care and what kind of people become foster parents? Foster care is a protective service which provides a child with a temporary family during a planned period while his parents are unable to take care of him. All kinds of people become foster parents: young, old, and of all ethnic backgrounds. Their main concern is for those children who are going through a difficult time in their lives and who feel that these children should have all the basic rights that every child deserves.

Qualifications for being a foster parent are simple: foster parents must be able to love and give to the child, and yet be able to see him move on when the time comes to go back home or to go into adoption. They must be able to try to understand and accept behavior problems related to the child's background of insecurity, rejection, different standards or lack of standards for behavior in the child's earlier home. The foster parents should be able to treat the foster child as one of the family, while he is there. The more active the foster family is, the better it is for the child. The family must be able to share their skills, talents, and recreational interests with the child to strengthen feelings of self-worth and self-confidence through stimulation of the child's creative interests.

FOSTER PARENTS must be certified and the social study includes application, references, about three interviews, medical statements, and having home inspections. The length of time involved in the study varies from one to two months.

The Department provides a reimbursement fee for the child's expenses, and most medical costs are taken care of.

If you feel that you can provide some love and warmth to a troubled child; if you feel that you can share your home and some proper guidance temporarily to a child in need, call the nearest Department of Public Welfare's Foster Home Development Office. The offices are: Austin, (512) 475-5657; Taylor, (512) 352-3611; or Lockhart, (512) 398-5271. You can also write to the Austin office for materials to be mailed to you. The address is: Department of Public Welfare, Foster Home Development Unit, 3000 S. Interregional, Austin, Texas 78704.

Robert will Chair county UCP drive

Ms J. W. Roberts will serve as Residential Chairperson for the United Cerebral Palsy of Texas annual campaign for funds which will be held here during the month of November.

Ms Roberts said the campaign will involve residents, business and industry, professional and community organizations, along with house-to-house solicitations in support of the UCP agency's programs of service for children and adults with cerebral palsy and their families.

United Cerebral Palsy of Texas purchases wheelchairs, braces, corrective shoes, counseling, information and referral, and a summer camping experience to cerebral palsied children and adults at no cost to their families. 70% of all funds collected throughout Texas are directed toward cerebral palsied children and adults in the state.

Damage to the brain associated with birth is the primary cause of cerebral palsy, Ms Roberts said. Persons with this condition may be unable to hear, speak or walk without braces or crutches, confined to wheelchairs or unable to move about at all. If diagnosed early in life, however, cerebral palsy can yield to therapy.

"We believe all persons with cerebral palsy can be helped," Ms Roberts said. "Whether they are young children, teenagers or adults, United Cerebral Palsy of Texas is here to see that they have an opportunity for habilitation, education, employment, recreation, or just to enjoy life to the fullest extent possible."

Ms Roberts as Chairman will oversee the recruitment of volunteers and the general organization of the fund drive. She called on all residents of Georgetown and surrounding towns to telephone her at 863-2997.
